Consumer ordinance found illegal

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—A consumer protection agency may be further away than ever for the township, if township attorney William Sempliner's opinion holds.

Supervisor Robert Greenstein announced Tuesday that he had received the opinion the board requested of Sempliner and it was a "partial opinion."

He said, "This opinion was written without the input of the public hearing (held April 2). It was drawn up by a young gentlemen in Sempliner's office in a hurry and was not given a whole lot of thought and consideration."

Although Greenstein would not reveal the contents of the opinion he indicated it was not favorable to the proposed ordinance drafted by attorney Peter Bundarin at the request of Trustee Robert Myers.

The supervisor said, "I would prefer the public not know the contents of the opinion because it is not yet complete and it could very harmful and destructive to the entire concept of a consumer protection ordinance." He added, "Most of the arguments made against the ordinance were emotional. Even if this opinion is changed people will still use it as an argument. This is an emotional area.

"With a background of 15 years of trial experience, I can say this is not a full opinion and releasing the contents would do more harm than good."

Greenstein returned the opinion, which he said he looked at on Friday, April 4, with out duplicating it. He instructed Sempliner not to show it to anyone and asked that several points be taken into consideration.

The supervisor asked Sempliner to consider:

- The fact that an assistant attorney general found no fault with the document.
- The fact the ordinance has been in effect since 1970 in Prince George's County, Maryland.
- The fact the ordinance has been tested in the Maryland courts and found legal.
- The fact that the only alterations in the ordinance drawn up by Bundarin change were names from Prince George's County to Canton Township.

Greenstein also said part of the proposed ordinance sent Sempliner was improperly copied. An entire section of the ordinance was supposed to be based on a statute numbered 4515 and Sempliner's copy read 4512.0

He said, "Since Mr. Sempliner had the wrong information it would be unfair to publicly release the contents of his opinion."

Bundarin said he had not seen the opinion rendered by Sempliner. He added, however, "My understanding is that he (Sempliner) found some fault with it."

A person familiar with Sempliner's opinion said there were several areas in document the attorney considered illegal, aside from the section with the wrong statute number.

Sempliner said he had been instructed not to reveal the contents of his opinion. He explained, "The township is my client and I cannot release the information because Mr. Greenstein asked me specifically not to last Thursday by phone (April 3)."

However, the attorney said four people had worked on the opinion for three or four weeks and that the opinion had been hand delivered on Wednesday, April 2, the day of the public hearing.

Greenstein said he has instructed attorney Bert Burgoyne to examine the proposed ordinance as well. He commented, "Since Bert is going to be handling a lot of our trial work, I thought it best that he too look at it."

The supervisor said he expected to receive both Burgoyne's opinion, and Sempliner's "second opinion based on the full information" in a week or two.

Trustee Brian Schwall asked to see the opinion and Greenstein said no copies had been made and the original had been returned to Sempliner.

He added "As a member of the board you have every right to look at it, but I would ask that you please keep it confidential. It would be harmful if you released it."

Jazzmen take top awards

PLYMOUTH—First place in Central Michigan University's annual statewide jazz festival for high school groups was captured by Plymouth's Centennial Educational Park stage band last weekend in Mt. Pleasant.

In addition to the two-foot-high silver and marble trophy which was won by the 19 musicians from Salem and Canton high schools, trumpet player Bill Lucas was awarded an individual trophy when he was selected as the day's best soloist.

As a result of being named the outstanding group in competition, the band shared the concert stage with CMU's own jazz band in an evening program before a capacity throng in Warriner Auditorium. The festival was under the sponsorship of CMU and the Phi Mu Alpha musical society.

Written comments from the four judges who named Plymouth No. 1 among all the high school groups included such remarks as:

"Keep up the exceptional work. You were an outstanding addition to the program.

"I'm looking for something wrong; there isn't anything.

"Super! How many lead trumpets have you got anyway?

"Fantastic soloists.

"Are you sure you're all in high school?

"Five stars to the director, too."

Bandmaster James R. Griffith is conductor of the stage band which includes these students:

Trumpets—Lucas, Julie Schubert and Mark Sudhoff, all seniors; junior Dan Moyer, and sophomore Bill Steele; trombones—seniors Jack Overhiser, Jeff Kelterborn and Dave Clinton, and juniors Bill Christie and Melvin Lane.

Alto saxophones—Bob DeLano, senior, and Bill Sweeney, junior; tenor saxophones—Anne Davis and Lew Burton, both sophomores; baritone saxophone—Mike Etienne, freshman.

Guitar—Steve Ezzo, senior; trap set—Dave Messacar, junior; bass—Brian Lockhart, junior; piano—Steve Wagren, junior.

All except Ezzo, Lockhart and Wagren are members of Plymouth's symphony high school band which will present a command performance for Governor Milliken in Lansing's Civic Auditorium the night of Wednesday, April 30.

A tape recording of the stage band's competitive performance at Mt. Pleasant will be presented on WSDP-FM (89.3) at 4:30 p.m. Monday, April 21. One of the highlights is the performance of the Maynard Ferguson chart of "MacArthur Park" which brought a standing ovation from a cheering, whistling audience.

The group's next public appearance will be in Oakland University's regional jazz festival on Saturday, April 19.

Retreat pleases board, planners

CANTON—Both township planner Mike Manore, and Supervisor Robert Greenstein were pleased with the outcome of the weekend long master land use plan "retreat."

But the results of that planning session will remain a secret until a draft of the master land use plan is readied for public hearing, probably some three to five months in the future.

Commented Greenstein, "We accomplished a great deal, I think. Although no voting or action was taken, we reached consensus on several problem areas. But we can't say what was agreed to because that would cause mass speculation on property in the township."

Manore was equally satisfied. He said, "We had some lengthy discussions and got quite a bit accomplished. Nothing was solidified by vote but we got some good direction.

According to Greenstein, a lot of time was devoted to discussing land use around the four major corridors in the township, I-275, Michigan Avenue, Canton Center, and Ford Road. He said, "We reached a a consensus on use of land in the high impact areas around the major corridors and we discussed densities in various portions of the township at length. Of course there are some questions that remain because we didn't have time to study everything, but I am sure they can be resolved."

Greenstein also said that land use in the western portion of the township was discussed at length.

The supervisor said the planning commission and township board will wait for Manore to report back with a map that showed what was agreed to.

He said, "The retreat was a pleasant surprise in many ways. Not only did we accomplish a great deal, but we learned a lot about the planning process itself.

"There was a real camaraderie between everyone there. Instead of arguing, we worked together an arrived at some conclusions. I was pleased with the whole thing."

In fire

Deadbolt locks pose hazard

By DARLENE STINSON

"Don't lock yourself to death!"

That's the message the Michigan State Fire Chief's Association (MSFCA) is trying to convey to burglar-wary residents, whose key-operated deadbolt locks are helping to keep burglars out and residents in.

The locks are deadly hardware in fire situations, the MSFCA maintains, when poisonous gases of smoke-filled rooms muddle the fire victim's search for the key needed to unlock the inside of the bolted door.

The MSFCA has charged Plymouth Township Fire Chief James Gignac, Westland Chief Ralph Savini and Birmingham Chief G. C. Nunnelley with the task of writing a pamphlet to discourage sale and use of the lock.

The pamphlet is earmarked for distribution through Michigan's schools and insurance companies, once a grant from industry is obtained to cover publication costs.

"It appears to me that these locks are putting more emphasis on material possessions than human life," said Gignac. "I can understand the feeling that people are doing the right thing by installing them. But there's so much emphasis in today's society on crime people overlook other things."

The MSFCA is blaming the locks for four deaths in Avon Township, one in the city of Wayne and one in Warren, where residents apparently could not find the key that would open the lock and doorway to life.

A Livonia woman was found dead last July near the back door of her condominium with the key to the deadbolt lock in the door.

At the time, Livonia Fire Marshal Ted Kovarik theorized that the woman died of smoke inhalation while attempting to unlock the door.

A deadbolt lock in a recent West Bloomfield Township fire hampered a resident from leaving his dwelling but did not cause death. Although inconclusive evidence points to the lock in two other Michigan fire fatalities, the MSFCA believes the locks prevented persons from leaving their homes.

According to Gignac, smoke from a fire contains poisonous gases, such as carbon monoxide and ammonia, that can impair a person's ability to function and think clearly. Under such circumstances, a fumbling search for a key can be a deadly venture.

"Every time people see movies or newspaper pictures of fire, they don't see the smoke," Gignac said. "This is why firefighters carry breathing units. We know how much heat our lungs can stand.

"People are under the assumption they have 15 or 20 minutes to get out of a fire," he said. "But it only takes a couple of breathfuls of poisonous gas, and they can no longer function. Why put an obstacle in their way that, under normal circumstances, they can manipulate?"

Until recently, the Michigan State Police promoted the lock as a good barrier against burglary. But, under pressure from the MSFCA, the Fire Marshall's Division of the Michigan State Police and other organizations, the state police have changed their recommendation to a noncommittal stand.

"Before we said it was the best lock for security and burglaries," said Trooper Michael Garrison of the Plymouth post of the Michigan State Police. "Now we let people make up their own minds. We feel we should mention the locks, but we're bound to mention the fire hazards."

The key-operated deadbolt lock prevents burglars from taking such large possessions as television sets that cannot fit through a window, some persons maintain.

But, as Gignac pointed out, a burglar could remove the pins from a door equipped with a deadbolt lock, swing the door open the opposite way and remove any large possessions that fit through the doorway.

"A real professional could get through any lock, if he had the time and the tools," Garrison admits. "We like people to look at locks as barriers."

Gignac said children and elderly persons, in particular, could have a difficult time opening the key-operated lock in fire situations.

If the lock is used, he added, the key should be left dangling on the inside, when residents are in the house.

According to Garrison, the state building code prohibits builders to install the key-operated locks in new homes.

Fire safety equipment which could save a person's life include smoke detection devices, selling for $35 to $65, and rope ladders for two-story homes, priced at about $25, Gignac added. The equipment should be stamped with the UL (United Laboratories) label.

Gignac encouraged families to plan fire-escape routes.

"I definitely think these things would cut down deaths by a good 50 per cent," he said.

Canton to plant 1,776 trees for bicentennial

CANTON—Ideas are blooming for Canton Township's share in the bicentennial celebration with plans under way to plant 1,776 trees throughout the next year.

Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein notes the township bicentennial commission is seeking ideas on the type of trees to plant, although he said a few suggestions have been made already.

"We're looking for a flowering tree, or something with colorful leaves," he said. Price range on the five-to-seven-foot trees would run around $2 for a scarlet maple or a flowering crab, "but anyone with any expertise in trees is welcome to give me a call."

The first tree will be planted this summer with the last tree set for planting on July 4 of next year.

Greenstein said the township has not yet decided on the financing of the project. "We might buy the trees, or ask 1,775 homeowners to buy them for their homes. We might also get volunteers to donate trees for planting down our major mile roads."

The supervisor said he favors the project very strongly noting "this will be something residents will be able to enjoy from the very beginning and we'll also have something that will remain for Canton residents in 2076 to enjoy."

Family support helps too

Nurses advance with federal funds

BY SHERRY KAHAN

When Mrs. Rosemary Mayes of Livonia walks up to receive a bachelor of science degree in nursing from Madonna College on April 26, it will be a live reenactment of a long-time fantasy.

Mother of six children, ranging in age from nine to 19, and employed as a nurse at Hawthorne Center, Mrs. Mayes says, "I never dreamed I could find the time."

And if handing out diplomas were like giving Academy Awards, Mrs. Mayes would probably turn to the audience and say, "I never could have made it without the help of my children and my husband, LaSalle.

"I also want to thank Madonna College and Hawthorn Center for their understanding and encouragement, and the Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW) for its traineeship grant."

MRS. MAYES more than two years ago joined the growing band of registered nurses who are returning to college to secure a baccalaureate degree.

However, last year, Madonna College received federal funds to put into effect a financial aid program for people just like her.

They were HEW traineeship grants for working nurses who wanted to update their education or earn a degree. Their purpose was to prepare nurses for teaching, clinical specialties, or leadership positions in administration and supervision.

"I knew I wouldn't get as far as I wanted without a degree," said Mrs. Mayes. "I wanted to broaden my horizons and get into such material as art, English and history that you don't get in a basic nursing course."

While carrying 13 credit hours at Madonna, Mrs. Mayes is on the job four days a week at Hawthorn Center, a place where she would like to continue working.

"I want to work in a psychiatric setting," she declared.

Apparently not the type to let a single blade of grass grow under her feet, the busy Mrs. Mayes spends her summers as director of the YMCA's Storer Camp, located near Jackson.

BUT SHE IS not the only registered nurse knocking herself out to obtain higher education at Madonna under a HEW traineeship grant.

Mrs. Gloria Pummill of Garden City daily scurries between a job in Wayne County General Hospital in Westland, classes at Madonna, and her husband, Bob, and their four children.

"The three-year nurse is almost extinct," said Mrs. Pummill, who works in the hospital's psychiatric department. "I feel my job will be more secure with a degree."

She always wanted to go on with her education to teach nursing subjects. When employed at Northville State Hospital, she enjoyed helping nurses from other hospitals who were brought in to learn how to treat a psychiatric patient.

"I still work with students at Wayne County and they are a delight," she said.

Mrs. Pummill recognizes the encouragement she has received from her family while continuing her schooling.

"Most of my professors and the sisters at the college have b en very helpful," she added. "My counselor, Sister Mary Humilitas, has helped a lot. It's the kind of encouraging atmosphere that does a lot for you when you might be down a bit."

SIX STUDENTS received these federal grants for the 1974-75 school year, with the college already planning to ask for twice as much money next year to help 10-12 persons.

Living up to affirmative action principles, Madonna chose a man as one of the six grant recipients. He is Allen Weinstein of Allen Park. The others are Melvina Cochran of Detroit, Jeannette Forest of Lincoln Park, and Wanda Ellis of Rochester.

To qualify, an applicant must be a U.S. citizen, graduate of an approved school of nursing, currently licensed as a professional nurse, able to enroll in a fulltime study program, and planning to use the training to continue a career in nursing.

"It is good for the government to recognize the need for an educated nursing personnel," said Mrs. Noreen O'Neill, chairperson of Madonna's nursing department.

"Those who win these grants will be guiding practical nurses and others who haven't had an opportunity to study for a bachelor's degree in nursing.

"In a hospital setting you need professional nurses who understand management principles and can thus enhance the job satisfaction of other personnel.

"It improves patient care when a nurse has been exposed to advanced theories in the nursing process and in science support areas."

MRS. O'NEILL finds it especially important that in the Madonna program nurses are exposed to the community health situation.

"Our students are required to take a course that sends them out into the public health area," she stated. "I think this is really fine. We're having to look more at the health care delivery system today. Already there are more community health plans.

"Public health nursing is becoming more prominent because it is felt that not everyone should be hospitalized."

Madonna also offers its nurses courses in leadership, gerontology and management principles.

Tax cut aids builders

By RICHARD GOLD

It may be too early to tell, but builders operating in Plymouth and Canton townships are optimistic about possible effects of a recently passed federal tax cut package.

The measure, signed by President Ford on nationwide televison has a provision entitled "1975 Special Tax Credit for Homebuyers."

That section is designed to spur the depressed housing industry and reduce inventories of newly constructed homes. It provides a tax credit of up to $2,000 for new homes purchased between March 12, 1975 and Jan. 1, 1976.

The credit is equal to five per cent of the purchase price of the home and is subtracted from the buyer's federal income tax.

The house must be the buyer's "principal residence" and must have been under construction by March 26.

Condominiums and mobile homes are included in the package and all buildings affected must be newly constructed. Any homes purchased that were previously occupied do not qualify under the tax credit program. All homes must be occupied by Jan. 1, 1977.

While the credit is designed to reduce new home inventories across the nation, builders contacted in the Plymouth-Canton area said they were not suffering from excessively large inventories.

Most area builders construct models, sell homes first on the basis of the models, and then build.

These builders avoid what is known as "spec" (speculative) building, where subdivisions are created, houses built and homes sold.

Commented Gene Gleba, general manager of Crescendo Homes, "It used to be common practice in the 50's to build 'specs' all the time and that's how a lot of builders went broke. Now we erect the models, sell and then build."

Gleba added, "We don't know how the credit is going to affect us since we don't fully understand how it works. But it should help us unload some of our inventory.

Gleba termed his inventory "slightly higher than normal." He said Crescendo has constructed more than a 1,000 homes in Canton in the last four years. Gleba added, "Right now we have about 25 homes in Canton, Troy and Stlerling Heights waiting to be sold. They were houses that were sold and then the buyer backed out."

Norman Long has constructed more than 100 houses in Canton in the last two years. He commented, "It's too early to tell right now. We were closed the Sunday after the bill was signed and the weather hasn't been too good for showing. We should have some idea in a couple of weeks."

Republic Development Corporation has decided to use the tax credit measure as part of its advertising. Leonard Faber, of Republic said, "It's premature now to guess on the effect. We should know next week."

He added, "We are optimistic the measure will be very helpful, but our situation is not that bad right now. We have some inventory, but that is normal. We intend to advertise with the tax credit and we'll see what kind of results we get."

James Bonadeo of James Bonadeo Builders said while sales did not increase, interest in his homes did.

Bonadeo, who has built close to 200 homes in Plymouth Township in the last three years said, "This should be most helpful for us. Our houses are priced such that people who purchase them will receive the full $2,000 benefit of the tax break."

He added, "I sure hope it does help us. Right now I'm sitting on $400,000 of inventory (seven houses). It would be nice to get some of the money back."

While the tax credit is intended to boost sluggish new home sales, realtors in the area think it may help sales of used houses.

Bob Rowe, a salesman at J.L Hudson Real Estate commented, "This should help business. People buying new homes have to sell their old ones first. If the old ones are reasonably attractive and priced within reason they should sell. There's always people in the market for old homes."

Vern Hackett, broker for Chamberlain Real Estate in Plymouth said the credit would not depress sales of old homes. He commented, "The market for old homes and new homes is almost completely separate. There's very little overlap."

NANCY HOOVER, of the Michigan Opera Theater (MOT), will appear in the opera-in-residence production of "Beauty and the Beast" during opera week in Plymouth. The opera-lecture demonstrations in Plymouth schools are sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council and the Plymouth Symphony Society. The orchestra will join a cast from MOT in Rossini's "Barber of Seville," April 26 in Plymouth Salem auditorium at 8 p.m. Tickets are available in the PCAC box office in the Detroit Edison Office on Main Street. Central pupils 'sentenced'

By DARLENE STINSON

PLYMOUTH—Pounding his gavel in the 35th District Court, Judge Brad Lamborne sternly delivered his sentenced "You will write 25 sentences, due by 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, 'I will try not to talk in class again.'

"Next case," the fifth grader commanded, while enjoying Judge Dunbar Davis' swivel chair.

Such scenes, which Stu Raben's fifth graders performed in the second floor courtroom of Plymouth City Hall, are common occurences in Central Elementary School, where Raben's and Bruce Alnatalo's fifth graders don't need teachers to tell them to behave.

That's because classroom constitutions, drawn up by students themselves, govern behavior and rights in the elementary school classrooms. There students daily inform fifth grade ticket writers of constitution violations and regularly try their peers before a student judge and jury.

According to Raben and Alatalo, the courtroom sessions serve as good classroom management tools as well as social studies lessons.

"It helps the students realize they have to answer for some of the things they do," Raben explained. "They're before their peers, which is the way it would be for me, if I had to appear in court.

"If I hand out a punishment, it's coming down from above," he said. "After all, the students are the ones being imposed upon, when someone misbehaves."

Most of the crimes for which students stand trial involve pushing, speaking without permission, name calling and playing "keep-away" with another's belongings.

The punishment fits the crime and increases in severity as the number of violations and severity of the crime rises. Most punishments involve sentence writing, a few hours in which the offender is prohibited to speak and— worst of all— a note home to mom and dad.

"Surprisingly enough, the students are quite fair," said Alatalo. "The punishments are designed to fit the crime. In the case of name-calling, for example, the student might be told to call himself a name."

Raben added, "Luckily, there's never hard feelings about sentences. Students know the whole thing will break down, if they don't come through with their sentences.

"I'm liable to lighten a sentence, if I think it's cruel and unusual punishment," Raben confessed. "We have a pretty full docket right now."

Court sessions began in Alatalo's classroom last year and in Raben's in November, after fifth graders viewed Judge Davis' proceedings in 35th District Court.

"The students were quite impressed with Judge Davis," Raben said. "He was just fantastic. Now we're doing the same thing on a smaller scale."

Students drew up their own classroom constitutions and elected a judge, court clerk, court secretary and policemen to deliver violation notices. The entire class acts as jury and recommends sentences from which the presiding judge picks and chooses.

"I've learned a lot about the court," confessed fifth grader Sue Katchka. "It's not run the way Barnaby Jones does it."

Fifth grader Darcy Johnson said, "It's a better way to get back at the kids than telling our teacher." Her classmates Joanna Miller added, "It's easier when we have court, because the children who give punishments understand what you did better."

Trial date set for shotgun slaying

CANTON—May 8 has been set as the trial date for Barry Provow, 27, his wife Leslie, 18, and Robert Umney, accused in the Jan. 27 murder of Canton resident Terry L. Buchman.

The date was set at a pretrial hearing held April 8.

The prosecution listed 29 witnesses, the attorney for Umney, Robert Delaney, said he will file a motion for a delay in the trial date to further examine the evidence and prosecution witness list.

Gary Davis, attorney for Leslie Provow, requested a dismissal or reduction of the first degree murder charge against his client and a hearing has been scheduled for April 18 to discuss his plea.

No special prosecutor has been assigned by the county to the murder case yet.

"Will the Plymouth Board of Education move the proposed Windsor Park elementary school?"

That controversial question will be cussed and discussed in a meeting of the Windsor Park Civic Association tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the Canton High cafeteria.

There has been considerable discussion about the construction of an access road to the new school. The pros and cons are expected to come up at the meeting.

All residents of the area are urged to attend.

Hollingshead is a 1973 graduate of Plymouth Salem high school.

Canton youth dies from aerosol abuse

PLYMOUTH—Eric R. Hunter, 14, was found dead in the bathroom of his home at 9326 Tavistock, Plymouth, after inhaling an aerosol spray.

Wayne County Coroner's Office put the cause of death as "accidental inhalation abuse of a volatile hydrocarbon."

A ninth grader at Canton High School, Hunter had received a varsity letter and two medals for wrestling in the heavyweight division. He was also a member of the freshman football team.

One of his teachers, Jim Muneio, called Hunter "a better than average student who caused no problems in school. He was an athlete and a good kid."

He is survived by his parents, Patricia and George Hunter; and grandmother, Mrs. Marcella Hunter of Ferndale.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Ashley Funeral Home in Hazel Park. Donations may be made to the Eric Hunter Memorial Fund.

'How to' books gain in popularity at library

PLYMOUTH— Unemployment is spurring activity in at least one building on Main Street— the Dunning-Hough Library.

"I can't say what percentage is due to unemployment, but we are getting busier," said head librarian Beth Simescu. "We've noticed people who come into the library during the day who normally are at work."

Circulation of books on home improvement, job resumes, successful job interviews, gardening and personal finances have jumped drastically in the last few months, she said.

"They were always popular," Mrs. Simescu added. "But we bought six additional copies of a job resume book, and they're just never here. Neither are the gardening books. We've noticed a tremendous emphasis in those areas."

Although library personnel has noticed a correlation between unemployment figures and increased business activity, circulation records cannot support their beliefs, according to Mrs. Simescu.

Serving the City of Plymouth and Plymouth and Canton townships, the library sets at the heart of a quickly growing community and serves more residents each year.

Last year's circulation figures, for example, show 13 per cent more books were borrowed in 1974 than the 154,000 books in 1973. Mrs. Simescu said such increases have marked circulation records during the last four years.

About 1,000 more books were taken from the library in January, 1975, than in January, 1974, she said. Circulation figures for this February jumped about 2,000 compared to the same month last year.

"It's difficult to say what increases are due to unemployment and what's due to growth," Mrs. Simescu said. "But people are more apt to use the library, if they're not working from nine to five. If they're unemployed and come into the library, they're not spending money like they would be bowling or going to a movie.

"You get into the question of whether people are using the library rather than buying books," she added. "We get comments like that over the counter. Now people are more apt to wait for us to get a book rather than buy it."

The increased number is perhaps largest impact the sour economy has had on the library clientele.

"Men are stopping in in the middle of the day rather than in the evening like they used to," Mrs. Simescu noted. "They come in to take out books on how to fix a leaky faucet or how to fix a chair."

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP FIREFIGHTERS rushed to Ford Motor Co.'s Sheldon Road plant Saturday morning, when a chemical holding tank caught fire. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring.)

Chemicals cause fire at Ford's

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP— A chemical fire at Ford Motor Co.'s Sheldon Road plant kept firefighters busy for five hours morning.

A holding tank, which contained a catalyst used in the manufacture of plastic car heaters, caught fire when the catalyst exploded.

The fire was comfined to the holding tank, and no injuries o property damage were reported, according to Sgt. F. Honke.

Fire Chief James Gignac said the plant's fire brigade had already brought the flames under control, when township firefighters arrived at 7:20 a.m. About 20 firefighters remained at the scene until noon to cool off the tank.

Old arguments being revived

By W. W. EDGAR

Now that the cry "Play Ball" has been heard around the major league cities an old argument is being revived--is baseball still the national pastime?

For years, when the game was played in every city, town and hamlet there never was a question about it. Baseball was the great American game and no one would even dare to argue the point.

The youngsters played the game in the alleys in the big cities. They were driven there for lack of room. In the small towns the baseball diamond was just as important as the city hall. Each community had one. And there were no restrictions. The youngsters used to gather in the mornings during vacation and play all day.

Aside from this activity each town had its adult team and the rivalries that developed among the several communities was something to behold.

On holidays when their teams would meet, scarcely anyone was left in the business section and the neighborhoods were empty.

YOU CAN IMAGINE what it would be like if the City of Plymouth team was meeting the township aggregation? Or what would happen when Garden City played Westland or Livonia sent its forces against Redford?

Well that's the way it used to be. But times have changed. The individual communities no longer have teams for there is no organized league for the official city teams to play.

Most of the playing now is done on the playgrounds or the municipal athletic field and no inter-community rivalries are being built.

"It's too bad, because these rivalries helped develop community pride that seems to be lacking these days.

What brought about the change?

There are many reasons. First, the communities have grown so dense there no longer is room for a diamond at the most popular corners. Next came opposition from golf. There was a time when golf was for the rich. But with the development of public links, many forsook baseball and went chasing the little white ball.

On top of these things, interest turned to hockey and skiing in the winter months, and games such as tennis moved indoors. Years ago no one would have thought about playing tennis at night. But they're doing it now.

WHILE THIS CHANGE was taking place professional football took hold and now, more than ever, it is the working man's sport.

So, if you just look at the picture, you'll see that baseball has a real fight to keep its place as the national pastime. In the old days--and not so long ago--there were no such games for the general public as tennis at night, golf and skiing, and no one could imagine pro football drawing capacity crowds.

But the happenings of the past week furnish proof that the fans' interest is changing.

First, the Tigers expect a crowd of only about 29,000 for the opener. They used to play to a filled stadium.

Last Sunday night an all-time record crowd gathered at the Olympia to see the Wings finish out of the playoffs for the fifth year in a row. In the same editions of the public prints it was learned that the Lions' advance sale of season tickets passed the 30,000 mark. And all this for a stadium that is not completed and may offer many problems for the spectators.

So you see, the fans' interest is now being divided into so many channels that baseball no longer has a tight hold.

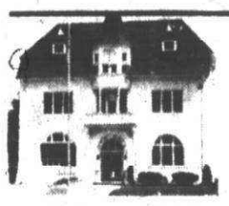
Symphony roots go back to 1851

(Part I)

The prestigious Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, which has made the community a place of "sweet airs that give delight" for the past 29 years, grew out of a small group of string players who got together to play for their own entertainment in 1945.

Not that Plymouth had been bereft of musical entertainment, mostly of the brass variety, down through the years. Michael Conner, who played the cornet, organized and led the first Plymouth band in the mid-1800's. Band members, and others interested in music, used to gather at the hardware store which Conner founded, in



PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

1851, at the corner of Main and Penniman.

"Quartets were always on hand and each Saturday night during the long winters there would be plenty of music echoing among the Conner store's dishpans, cookstoves and pitchforks," recalled Charlie Bennett, who was born here in 1863.

At a later period, the brass band which performed at the Plymouth Fair from 1886 to 1903 did its share to add to the gaiety of the occasion. Photos are also in existence of a Plymouth Cornet Band (1890) and a Plymouth Brass Band (1905 to 1913).

Musical comedies and minstrel shows staged at Amity Hall (1869-1893) and at the Opera House, located over the old Village Hall, also had the community tapping its feet to tunes ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous.

None of these early musical efforts was, of course, in the same league as the Plymouth Symphony. Foundation of the Symphony Orchestra, involving, as it did, talented amateur and professional musicians from Plymouth and 16 surrounding cities, and attracting audiences from the 35 different communities in southeast Michigan, was a major cultural advance in the history of the entire area.

It all began in Carl Groschke's Feed Store.

Fred Beitner, one of the original group, says the few musicians from which the Plymouth Symphony evolved first got together at the Feed Store at 637 South Main Street, in the building which now houses the Anderson Music Store.

Groschke, with his bass viol; his wife, Evelyn Woods, with her piano; and Roy Pursell, with his violin, began to play together in Groschke's store. Pursell, father of State Senator Carl Pursell, had a stationery store in the same building.

Beitner, who played the violin, and who was a neighbor of the Pursell's, was invited to join. The group grew and soon graduated from the back of the feed store—amidst the bags of chicken feed, seeds and fertilizers—to the Groschke home of Mill Street, near the corner of Pearl. There Evelyn could have access to her grand piano.

Mr. Beitner remembers that some of those who joined the group did not stay long. Among the original members, in addition to the Groschke's, Pursell and Beitner, were: Daisy Barnes, viola; William Bateman, clarinet; Jens Pedersen, violin; Tom Houghton, trumpet; Ardis Curtiss Long, violin; Leo Kowalcik, viola; Art Baker, cello; David Mather, clarinet; Kenneth Greer, violin; and Virginia Fischer, horn.

Merely a group of amateur musicians, playing together for their own entertainment, they had no inkling of the grand events which were to be thrust on them. Things might have remained at that level but for the appearance in Plymouth of a catalyst and prime mover in the person of Paul Wagner.

Wagner, who came to Plymouth in 1946 as musical supervisor in Plymouth High School, had played in symphony orchestras in other cities. He had a burning desire to conduct one of his own. The problem was where to find one. In the words of Leopold Stokowski, "If one wishes to play the piano and make it one's life work, it is not too difficult to reach a piano; but if one wishes to conduct a symphony orchestra, it is extremely difficult to practice the instrument, the symphony orchestra, because a large orchestra is very costly."

Wagner had graduated from the Baldwin-Wallace Conservatory of Music and studied at Western Reserve and at the University of Michigan. During World War II, he directed Army, Navy and WAC bands at Paris Island, Northern China, Guam and Okinawa. He had played in, and occasionally conducted, symphony orchestras in Charleston, Medina and Toledo.

As soon as he arrived in Plymouth, Wagner began investigating available talent and interest in music with the thought of organizing a symphony orchestra. He soon learned of the group that met at Groschke's. In the fall of 1946 he asked the amateur musicians if they would like to form a symphony orchestra.

Fred Beitner recalls the amazement with which the handful of players heard Wagner's suggestion.

"Just the very thought of forming a symphony orchestra staggered us," he told me recently. "We thought of ourselves, if anything, as a chamber music group. We had played at an installation of Eastern Star officers and on a few other occasions locally, without pay; but the idea of starting a symphony orchestra had never entered our minds."

(Part II will cover early rehearsals in a converted stable; the first concert; and the formation of the Plymouth Symphony Society).

Honey Sweet and Can't Be Beat

Phone books are delivered

The colorful 1975 West-Northwest area telephone directories of Michigan Bell are being distributed in all areas in Western Wayne County.

That was the announcement of Livonia-Plymouth Manager Hazel Wilson.

With the title "A Book for All Seasons" the new directory cover features four seasonal photographs of Michigan scenes: an apple tree with blossoms; the Tahquamenon River Paradise in the U.P.; autumn leaves near West Branch in Ogemaw County; and birch trees in the snow near Avery in Montgomery County.

Inside the back cover Ma Bell has color photographs of its new design line telephones now available to customers.

For the first time, the yellow pages offer a series of tips for consumers. These are the result of cooperative efforts between the Better Business Bureau of Detroit and Michigan Bell.

Included are such hints as how to get best results when complaining to a company about a faulty product, how to use a layaway plan, what to look for when purchasing a dishwasher or how to cope with the metric system.

Wilson indicated it will take the better part of two weeks to complete delivery of the new directories.

County ponders court contracts calling for 21 per cent pay hike

The ways and means committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has in its hands contracts for court employes which contain salary adjustments of 21 per cent — plus pension costs — or about 7 per cent a year rather than the basic 4-½ per cent.

These contracts are for court attorneys, referees and court reporters for the Common Pleas, Recorder's, Probate and Circuit courts. They are retroactive to July 1973 and '74.

COMMISSIONER MARY DUMAS (R-Livonia), comments on the contracts:

"I realize these contracts were negotiated in good faith by employes and the labor board, and that they have been in the process of bargaining for two years in the instance of court attorneys and referees and almost three years for court reporters for whom this is a new bargaining unit.

"I am aware also that some of these salary adjustments are intended to bring these employes up to the level of other employes in similar classifications at the county level.

"However, the amount of these adjustments weren't included in the budget plans for this year and our fiscal advisor has indicated that we will be about $1 million over our allocation for salary increases.

"The Board of Auditors indicates Wayne County will probably end up with a $6.7 million deficit this year."

MRS. DUMAS said there are only three options open to the board of commissioners.

"I am opposed to the first — deficit spending. In fact, that is why I voted 'no' on the proposed budget for this fiscal year, realizing it was based on an unrealistic picture of aniticipated revenues.

"I am reluctant to accept the second option of a flat across the board cut of 10 per cent because it would mean laying off many worthy county employes at a time when unemployment is at an all-time high and governments' efforts are bent toward creating job opportunities."

Mrs. Dumas said the only acceptable alternative is that department heads, and especially the courts and Wayne County General Hospital, be required to come up with and perhaps increase their mandatory savings.

So far the Juvenile Court has been the only court to consistently come up with the mandatory savings. Because this will require cuts in all budgets, I would like to see the board of commissioners through the labor board ask the county employe unions to lay all their contracts back on the table for renegotiation of the third year.

"In private industry the UAW, through Bard Young and other labor leaders, has shown its willingness to reopen bargaining — asking workers to forego this year's pay increases — even to take pay reductions or work four-day weeks rather than have fellow workers laid off.

"I would hope that our county units would be willing to take steps in this direction."

IN A RELATED statement, Mrs. Dumas said:

"I believe for the long run the county board of commissioners is going to have to take a hard look at whether we can afford to continue paying employes at levels which are far above what private business and industry pays or can afford.

"When government does so it increases the inflationary pressures and makes mere existing more difficult for marginal businesses and for families and individuals living on law and fixed incomes, such as our senior citizens.

"In the long run, it adds to the taxpayers' burden by driving many businesses out of the market, thereby reducing jobs and relief rolls."

This will be a very difficult year for the county as it is for the state and local units of government, she added. "Unfortunately, as our source of revenues decrease, our problems and the services required of the county will increase.

"Crime, juvenile delinquency, alcohol and drug abuse, mental illness, and public health and social service needs, all increase with unemployment.

"I hope Congress diverts funds from such enticing projects as the Michigan State University study of 'the sexual habits of migrating females' to providing the badly-needed appropriations for the yet unfunded Juvenile Delinquency Act of 1974 and the under-funded programs for mental health."

Mrs. Dumas, whose 19th District also includes Northville and Northville Township, is a member of the county's human resources committee, acting chairman of the Juvenile Facility Network executive committee, and a county representative on the Detroit-Wayne County Criminal Justice Coordinating Council.

Hearing on aged needs will be held in Livonia

A hearing in Livonia is among six public hearings scheduled this month by the Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging to hear residents' views on the needs of senior citizens.

The hearing will be Thursday, April 24, beginning at 10 a.m. in the Livonia Senior Citizens Center, 15218 Farmington Road south of Five Mile.

On Friday, April 25, a 10 a.m. hearing will be held in the Romulus City Council chambers at 11111 Wayne Road.

Members of the agency's 15-member board of directors will participate in the hearings. The agency's funding objectives for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will be outlined and public reaction will be encouraged.

The resulting area plan will be submitted to the Michigan Office on Aging to qualify Wayne County programs for the aged for a total of $715,860 under the U.S. Older Americans Act.

The proposed plan is available for review at the agency's offices, 2516 David Stott Building, 1150 Griswold, Detroit, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Major objective of the plan are development of health preventive and counseling programs.

'The Detroiter' features Edgar

W.W. Edgar, an Observer & Eccentric writer best known for his "Stroller" columns, is the subject of an extensive interview appearing in April issue of the "The Detroiter."

Edgar's long career, beginning on the Detroit Free Press sports desk in 1950, is chronicled by Sam Hudson, a local historian from Plymouth.

Affectionately known as "Eddie" to perhaps millions of sports fans, Edgar is a well-known raconteur of his adventures as a journalist.

The magazine story freely quotes Edgar whose inimitable style wrested interviews with many political and sports greats.

Beginning on an Allentown, Pa. paper, Edgar joined the Free Press and rose to become its sports editor. Later, in 1948, he became executive secretary of the Bowling Proprietors of Greater Detroit. In 1966, Edgar joined the staff of the Observer Newspapers.

He also is well known for his weekly bowling radio spot on WJR and for the many awards, both in journalism and sports, he has continued to win over the years.

New Madonna program

Legal aides expand lawyers' time

By CRAIG PIECHURA

The American Bar Association (ABA) acknowledges there is a surplus of young lawyers seeking work in the job market.

So, what is the American Bar Association doing helping Madonna College set up a new law course?

They are trying to make lawyers time more valuable by helping establish a legal assistant training program designed to open up jobs for paralegal employes.

THIS FALL Madonna College will introduce a two-year associate degree and a four-year bachelor's degree for legal assistants.

Students in the class will be taught research techniques and legal procedure by practicing attornies. The program is not designed for students who intend to go on in their schooling and enter law school.

The training will include how to find information in law libraries, how to conduct prepatory interviews and prepare casework such as the drafting of routine wills.

They cannot counsel clients, plead cases or finalize any co8tracts but the ABA feels para-legal aids can free lawyer's valuable time to perform more crucial matters that must be handled by a licensed attorney.

MICHIGAN HAS been slow to hire legal assistants but they are used extensively in states such as California and New York.

"My law firm has not hired a legal assistant yet," said Patrick Duggan, president of the Livonia Bar Association. "But that is because few schools in this state, if any, offered the training.

"Madonna is probably the first college in the state to push this type of legal training. From what I hear about the success of legal assistants in other states, I see a definite use for these people in our law firm.

"For example we have six men in our law firm. "We might say, 'Do we want to hire another lawyer or could we expand our practice using a legal assistant'?"

MADONNA IS hoping that because they are one of the first colleges in the state to offer a legal assistance degree there will be jobs for students who earn the degree in "a pioneer profession."

"We're appealing to the lawyer's mercenary side in finding employment for these legal assistants," says Dennis Bozyk, Madonna's legal studies counselor and chairman of the school's social science department.

"The ABA studies on this project show legal assistants are out there doing research work at $5 and $6 an hour while freeing the lawyer to spend their professional time with clients at $40 an hour."

"The legal assistants are highly qualified people," Bozyk said. "They provide the lawyer with the opportunity to do more vital work that can only be done by an attorney."

One of the teachers already signed for the fall term is Austin Anderson who is the chairman of the special committee on legal assistants for the ABA and director of the Institue of Continuing Legal Education at the University of Michigan.

The two courses offered in the fall are "legal assistant orientation" and "legal research and procedures."

JACK McDONALD, 42, has been appointed exeeutive director of the Republican Congressional Committee the campaign arm of House Republicans which has been in operation since 1866. McDonald, a former Redford Township Supervisor, served three terms in Congress representing the former 19th District which then included Redford, Livonia and Farmington. He served as chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors in 1965, and was named outstanding young man of the year by the Redford Jaycees in 1964. The Republican Congressional Committee has a full-time staff of 35 which McDonald now heads.

Lobby to fight income tax hike

A citizens committee been formed by the Michigan Citizens Lobby to work towards the rollback of the recent 0.7 per cent increase in the state income tax.

The action was decided upon after the group completed a public opinion poll which revealed that 79 per cent of the state's taxpayers are opposed to an income tax, favoring instead a hike in luxury, nuisance and business taxes if more state revenue is really needed.

DECLARING THAT these are hard times when taxes ought to be going down rather than up, Lobby Director Barbara Grossman says:

"Using the power of petition granted us by the constitution, we intend to take back those tax dollars and put them where they belong — in the pockets of working people.

"At a time when the federal government finally is granting some much needed tax cuts to help middle-income persons trapped in this recession, it makes absolutely no sense for the state to turn around and take it back from us by raising the state income tax."

According to Ms. Grossman, results of the poll along with a list of alternative means to raise state revenue that wouldn't hit middle-income and working families so hard were recently presented to legislative leaders.

Despite efforts to head off an increase by Senators William Fitzgerald (D-Detroit) and John Bowman (D-Warren), says Ms. Grossman, "a majority of legislators favored taking the easy way out by hitting the middle class again rather than turning to those who can better afford higher taxes."

"WHEN WE JOINED with more than a million Michigan shoppers last fall to eliminate the sales tax on food and medicine, the lobby also pledged to fight any income tax increase this year.

"And we intend to keep our word."

The committee formed to roll back the 0.7 per cent income tax increase, Citizens to Cut Unfair Taxes (CUT), is similar to the coalition led by the lobby in the successful effort to repeal the food and drug tax in Michigan.

The committee will unveil the contents of its campaign after all members of the committee have been consulted, says Ms. Grossman who also indicated the proposal would be fiscally responsible and wouldn't deprive the state treasury of any needed revenue.

John DiPonio dies in work site fall

John DiPonio, 45, president of Jay Dee Contractors Inc. of Livonia, was killed Friday when he feel into a hole at a Chicago construction site.

DiPonio, a Redford Township resident, headed a company active in such public projects as a 21-story deep pumping station which won the 1974 distinguished building award from the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

Insurance costs drive up hospital room rates

R.T. Thompson writes

While all the furor over soaring costs of malpractice insurance for doctors has been disturbing folks, it's time to relate how these rate increases are going to affect anyone who has use of a hospital.

Malpractice premiums for doctors have skyrocketed to the point where many members of the profession are thinking of getting out. They know they can't afford to pay the insurance without making their charges for services reflect the increase.

But now a new angle has entered the picture, one that hasn't been mentioned in most of the malpractice news releases.

What about the hospitals who suddenly have discovered their costs for such insurance has tripled and quadrupled in the last two or three years? A hospital can't very well say it is being forced out of business by the high cost of insurance, but if it was in any other business its management would consider quitting.

A CHECK OF area hospitals shows malpractice insurance costs have climbed so high that most are thinking of increasing room service rates. So in the end, it is the patient who will bear the additional costs.

That means a demand from Blue Cross-Blue Shield and similar hospitalization plans for a hike in rates. In turn, that reflects back to the patient or to the company carrying his insurance.

The malpractice insurance premium for St. Mary Hospital in Livonia has jumped from $137,000 two years ago to more than $400,000 this year. This for a hospital that has had an excellent record.

As a result of the increased insurance costs, St. Mary Hospital is considering an increase of $8 to $10 for room service. Take into consideration that St. Mary has been operated so efficiently it has been able to keep daily charges down to a much lower rate than many hospitals in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Botsford Hospital, which faces an increase of more than 20 per cent and a premium of $119,000, figures it costs each patient $1.25 daily to help pay the insurance costs.

Garden City Osteopathic wasn't prepared at this time to release any figures for the insurance, but an administrator said it would be much higher. The board of directors will meet later in the month to determine future action.

ALTHOUGH ALL hospitals point to malpractice insurance rates causing some of the financial difficulties they are facing, management points to extreme cost increases of high volume items used in patient care.

For example, suction catheters increased 117 per cent in one year; polyethylene bags, 145 per cent; and ampicillin, 128 per cent. Sheets and patient gowns have climbed an average of 33 per cent and bath towels 76 per cent. Oral penicillin increased 18 per cent.

No wonder hospitals have to hike room service costs. No wonder the Blue Cross-Blue Shield is asking for additional monies.

But behind most of the increases is that bugaboo known as malpractice insurance. It is driving doctors out of the profession, and as shown above it is making things very precarious for hospitals.

These are just a few of the reasons why folks should write letters to their representatives in Lansing. The matter of malpractice insurance costs must be settled quickly before the situation gets more acute.

Local zoning laws meet new challenges in court

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

The right of individual cities, villages and townships to determine themselves the kinds of communities they wish to be is very deeply embedded into our American tradition of local self-government.

The right is expressed in a number of ways. Certainly local control of zoning and land use is the most important, followed by local voting of school millage.

And it is a right that makes a difference. Over the years, it has made a Bloomfield Hills different from a Farmington, a Plymouth different from a Redford Township.

And it is a right—at least as it has been used in the suburbs—that is coming under increasing challenge, particularly from the courts.

LOCAL ORDINANCES requiring large lots for houses or banning apartment buildings and mobile homes have been the subject of discrimination suits in federal and state courts. Opponents argue that such ordinances effectively exclude poor people, blacks, and other minorities from the suburbs.

A case now pending before the U.S. Supreme Court poses the unexpected question of whether people who do not even live in a community can force it to change its zoning rules. The case involves the black residents of Rochester, N.Y., who are challenging the zoning ordinances of the nearby suburb of Penfield.

In another decision, the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled last week that all communities in the state must provide a fair share of the low and moderate-income housing needed in their region. The court struck down the zoning regulations of suburban Mount Laurel, and appeal is unlikely since the court based its ruling on state constitutional guarantees.

Petaluma, a community 35 miles north of San Francisco, passed an ordinance limiting to 500 the number of new homes that could be built annually within the city limits, only to find it declared unconstitutional by a federal district court on the grounds that the restrictive ordinance violated the constitutionally-protected right of free travel.

OBVIOUSLY, these cases rub a raw nerve in the suburbs.

Zoning has always been one of the gut political issues in these communities. A former mayor of Livonia built his political success for many years on his firm pledge to stop apartment building in the city. The hearings over zoning for the proposed giant shopping center in northwestern Farmington Hills were traumatic for the entire community.

The emotions aroused by zoning run all the way from simple bigotry ("I don't want any blacks living next to my house") to preserving property values ("Why should I let the value of my house collapse when they put up ticky-tacky next door?").

AT THE HEART of the issue, moreover, is one of the deepest of human instincts: territoriality. We don't like other folks to mess with our turf, whether we live in Birmingham or Garden City.

What is really going on in those developments (aside from the fascination certain judges have with the equal protection clauses of the Constitution) is that the cities of this country are breaking down. They are no longer providing the neighborhoods, education and security which poor or minority or just ordinary families need for stable development.

And since the big cities can't provide these requirements, the pressure is on the suburbs.

To say they will resist is to make one of the understatements of the year.

The miraculous 11-cent drop

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

The kids have a great expression to describe someone taking advantage of you or stealing from you. They say the person is "ripping you off."

We hear continually from Washington that we have an energy shortage and we must cut our consumption of gasoline and oil so that the country can import less of it from the Arab world.

On the other hand, we drive down the street and see some oil companies discounting prices so they can sell more of their products, which has to make people wonder about the shortage of the product.

But that's not where the ripping off comes in.

LAST WEEK I wrote about the fun and mobility of traveling to Florida in a motor home.

We took such a trip and kept accurate records of everything including how much gas we bought, for how much, where.

The motor home got 7.83 miles a gallon and had a 40 gallon tank, so our stops at gas stations were frequent and financially impressive.

We paid from a low of 47.9 cents to a high of 59.9 cents per gallon. It averaged 52.5 cents per gallon.

WHAT WAS DISTURBING was when we purchased gas at the high of 59.9 cents at a Union 76 station, there was an Amoco station across the street advertising gas for 48.9 cents but it was closed for the evening.

I've noticed the same thing here in this area.

One morning I stopped at a Gulf station at Telegraph and Maple in Bloomfield Township and paid 60.9 cents a gallon.

Less than half an hour later I stopped at the Gulf station at Telegraph and Schoolcraft in Redford Township and the price for the same kind of gas was 49.9 cents.

I traveled south 11 miles and the price of gasoline dropped 11 cents.

IT'S A GOOD thing I wasn't going north that day.

The point is obviously that the gas companies are playing with prices, and we, the public, are getting ripped off.

It certainly doesn't cost Gulf or any other company 11 cents difference to supply the two stations I've mentioned.

In singling out Gulf it may be unfair because on our trip they had the most consistently low gas prices we paid.

The example cited, though, is valid and true and it raises great doubts in my mind whether the alleged energy shortage is as real as pictured or is a device to help oil companies boost their profits.

Sense And Nonsense

The Michigan Farm Bureau hopes, "For the benefit of farmers, farm workers and consumers, the Potty Bill should be 'flushed' down the legislative drain."

Current legislation being proposed is the Field Sanitation Act, more commonly known as "The Potty Bill." If passed, it would require farmers to provide suitable, separate toilets for each sex (properly screened, ventilated and kept clean) in any field which is an "unreasonable" distance from a central toilet facility.

"Unreasonable" is subject to interpretation. For some, the distance would be shorter than others.

Agricultural workers were interviewed recently to determine if their needs were being met.

One of the workers said, "For Heavens sake, don't make any more laws, or we'll lose our jobs."

Emory Daniels Writes...

Snob housing plans will help NAACP's case

You can take precautions against the revival of cross-district school busing in a couple of years by looking at what your city council is doing right now.

Local councils are in the process of applying for federal funds under the Community Development Act (CDA) of 1974. A group called the Coalition for Block Grant Compliance has looked over the same applications and is accusing some suburbs of promoting deliberate discriminatory housing patterns.

Meanwhile, the NAACP—the group that is the plaintiff in the Detroit school desegregation case—is considering using that evidence in an effort to keep the suburbs in the case.

RECENTLY, attorneys for the Detroit Board of Education submitted the findings of the Coalition for Block Grant Compliance before U.S. District Judge Robert DeMascio, who is studying a Detroit-only busing solution.

No charge of de jure (by law) segregation has been made yet in federal court. But once DeMascio rules on the Detroit-only solution, you can bet the emphasis will be switched to a metropolitan remedy. At that point, evidence of de jure segregation (if it exists) can be introduced.

Residents of Livonia, Garden City, Redford Township and Westland have until April 15 (the deadline to amend CDA applications) to appear before their governing bodies and say: "Make sure our house is in order."

The coalition claims these communities' applications for CDA funds represent deliberate discrimination. Now, that may be untrue; it is only an allegation, and Redford, Livonia and Garden City officials have already denied it.

THE ALLEGATIONS take on greater significance, however, since being introduced before Judge DeMascio as reasons why our suburban school districts should remain defendants.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled the suburbs couldn't be made part of the remedy unless each suburb was found guilty of acts of segregation. It's just possible the suburbs' applications for federal funds may provide the evidence the Supreme Court requires in order to uphold a "metropolitan remedy." That means cross-district busing of school children.

Of course, you have nothing to fear if your city or township's application is in order. But if it flagrantly violates the requirement to provide housing for workers—well, you just might want to tell the council to fix it up. Any lawyer will tell you that the best way to win a case is not to become a defendant in the first place.

'Equal Rights' defended

READERS FORUM

Letters must be original copies and contain the signature and address of the sender.
Limit letters to 300 words.

Editor:

An anti-Equal Rights Amendment letter in the April 3 edition shows an abysmal lack of understanding of the purpose and effect of the amendment.

There are thousands of laws that discriminate on account of sex. ERA would amend or abolish these laws. Benefits to one sex would be extended to the opposite sex.

In addition to the many state laws that treat women differently from men, there are insurance laws which allow companies to refuse to sell certain policies to women or charge more for the same coverage.

Many tax laws are unfair to women, and the Social Security laws are full of inequities to both sexes. There are many more examples, but this should give readers some indication of how widespread discrimination is.

It also explains why many responsible organizations such as the League of Women Voters, American Association of University Women, Business and Professional Women, Church Women United and many more support the amendment.

Organizations opposed to ERA include the Ku Klux Klan, American States Rights Party and other hate groups as well as one wing of the Communist Party.

Cut jobs, cut costs

Editor:

We are informed it costs $141,000 per state legislator. If we had a unicameral type of state government with just one house, this cost would be greatly reduced.

The voters would be very much aware of the performance of their district legislators as there would be only one to watch.

THE OUIJA board is popular with some but Gundella prefers a planchette which has a pencil or ballpoint pen which can write messages instead of just pointing out letters. The Ouija, Gundella says, is less preferred because one can never be sure if another isn't pushing the board to influence the message.

Subconscious often writes mysterious messages

Almost everyone is familiar with the Ouija board, a flat board about 18 by 12 inches with the alphabet and the words "yes," "no" and "good-bye" printed on it. The name "Ouija" comes from the French and German words "oui" and "ja" meaning yes.

A planchette is a small wooden instrument, usually triangular or heart-shaped, mounted on ball-bearing casters and very much like the pointer used with the Ouija board. The pointer itself is sometimes called a planchette. The major difference is that a pencil or ballpoint pen is inserted in the planchette so that it writes messages instead of just pointing out letters.

I PREFER the planchette over the Ouija board for two reasons.

An Ouija board is made to be used by two players. I've never been able to be sure the other player wasn't pushing the board and influencing the message, and I'm sure that at times they must have had the same doubts about me.

Then, too, the pointer often moves very fast, and human memory being what it is, the message may not always be recalled accurately later when you are trying to analyze it.

The planchette is used by only one person. If it moves, either you or some outside force is pushing it; with it, you have a written record of the message.

WHETHER OR NOT you believe the messages, there is no disputing the fact that they are received. The questions are: Received from whom? or from what? or from where?

Are you subconsciously controlling the planchette without knowing it? Are these messages really from deep within your mind, perhaps made up of knowledge gleaned by your clairvoyance and revealed to you through automatic writing?

Or is the instrument being pushed by other forces, and the messages the words of other entities, spirits dwelling on another plane?

One of my students, a gentle old man in his 70s, insisted that the writing his planchette produced was the work of a ghost. When I asked him how he could be so certain, he answered, "All it ever writes is dirty words, and I don't talk that way!"

I really don't believe that particular old man ever did say a dirty word in his whole life, but I'm sure he knew what they meant and had at least thought them a few times. This was a way for his subconscious to express these thoughts and blame it on some lecherous old ghosts.

One lady misplaced a set of valuable rings, and her neighbor was able to find them for her through the use of her planchette. Did this come to her through clairvoyance, or with the aid of a spirit guide? Who can be sure?

I DON'T BELIEVE in paging ghosts, but if you feel a spirit has been trying to contact you, perhaps you can help it by sitting in the haunted area with a planchette

Some people claim to receive such inspired writing with nothing more than a pen held in the hand they do not ordinarily write with. Others have typed out whole manuscripts.

One woman writes scores for musical compositions which she believes are given to her by Liszt, Mozart and other combosers long dead.

Many things people write in this way are pure fantasy, much like dreams. They should be accepted as such and be interpreted in the same way as dreams your mind creates while you are sleeping.

In any case, if you decide to try your hand at automatic or spirit writing, do it with an open mind and analyze your writings carefully.

Do not be disheartened if at first you receive only illegible scribbles. It often takes many writings before you receive easily deciphered messages. The handwriting will not resemble your own. If you are using a planchette, your i's will not be dotted and your t's seldom crossed.

(You may write Gundella at Box 434, Garden City, Mich. 48135. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

SC Jaycees elect officers

Joe Horvath of Livonia has been elected president of the Schoolcraft College Jaycee chapter which is believed to be the first community college chapter in the nation.

Officers for the new chapter were elected at a general meeting following a four-hour sign-up period in early February.

Others holding office are: Rick Testasecca of Farmington Hills, internal vice-president; Sandy Altshul of Livonia, external vice-president; Paul Horanoff of Livonia, secretary; and Bill Frasier of Livonia, treasurer.

Sponsored by the Livonia Jaycees, the new chapter will be chartered on March 20. They will provide volunteers for a campus blood drive in March and will participate in a "walk for mankind" fund raiser in April.

RICH KANGAS

ANYONE CAN SELL A HOUSE, RIGHT?

The neatly-lettered sign on your lawn says "For Sale by owner, inquire within." You put it up yesterday with a silent prayer that it would attract some passerby, and it did, by gosh!

There is someone pushing your doorbell right now, and he might be just the perfect buyer for your home! In fact, he is the perfect buyer for your home, assuming that he has enough income, money, borrowing power, credit rating, need, desire, guidance, technical knowledge, time, inspection of comparable properties, reinforcement, market data and mortgage sources ... or assuming that you can help him in the areas where he might have a problem. He might be a perfect buyer if, in fact, he is ringing your bell with a sincere intention of buying ... if he isn't a trifler, a shopper, a dreamer, a busybody, or a weirdo at best. (No, you'd better not try to judge motives, character, and sincerity by what he looks like, unless you have plenty of time, courage, and gambling blood!)

The plain truth is that you don't know and can't know anything about him at this moment except that he can read three words and ring a doorbell. You have, in effect, started a 'round-the-clock' open house for any and all citizens who are able to do any of these things ... and they need no other qualifications in order to gain admittance into your home and a generous supply of your time and patience. Would you think of opening the door just a crack and asking him a number of personal questions about his financial position, family status, present mortgage and living habits? Could you hold him at bay while you make an analysis of his needs and purchasing power? Might you discuss some other properties being offered in the neighborhood? Could you, in other words, find out much more about him than his name before admitting him to your home? Grant, through a crack in the door (and do them effectively) the first and deepest pitfall would be behind you.

Watch next week for the second installment. In the meantime, however, call one of our counselors for a personal and rational discussion of these related issues.

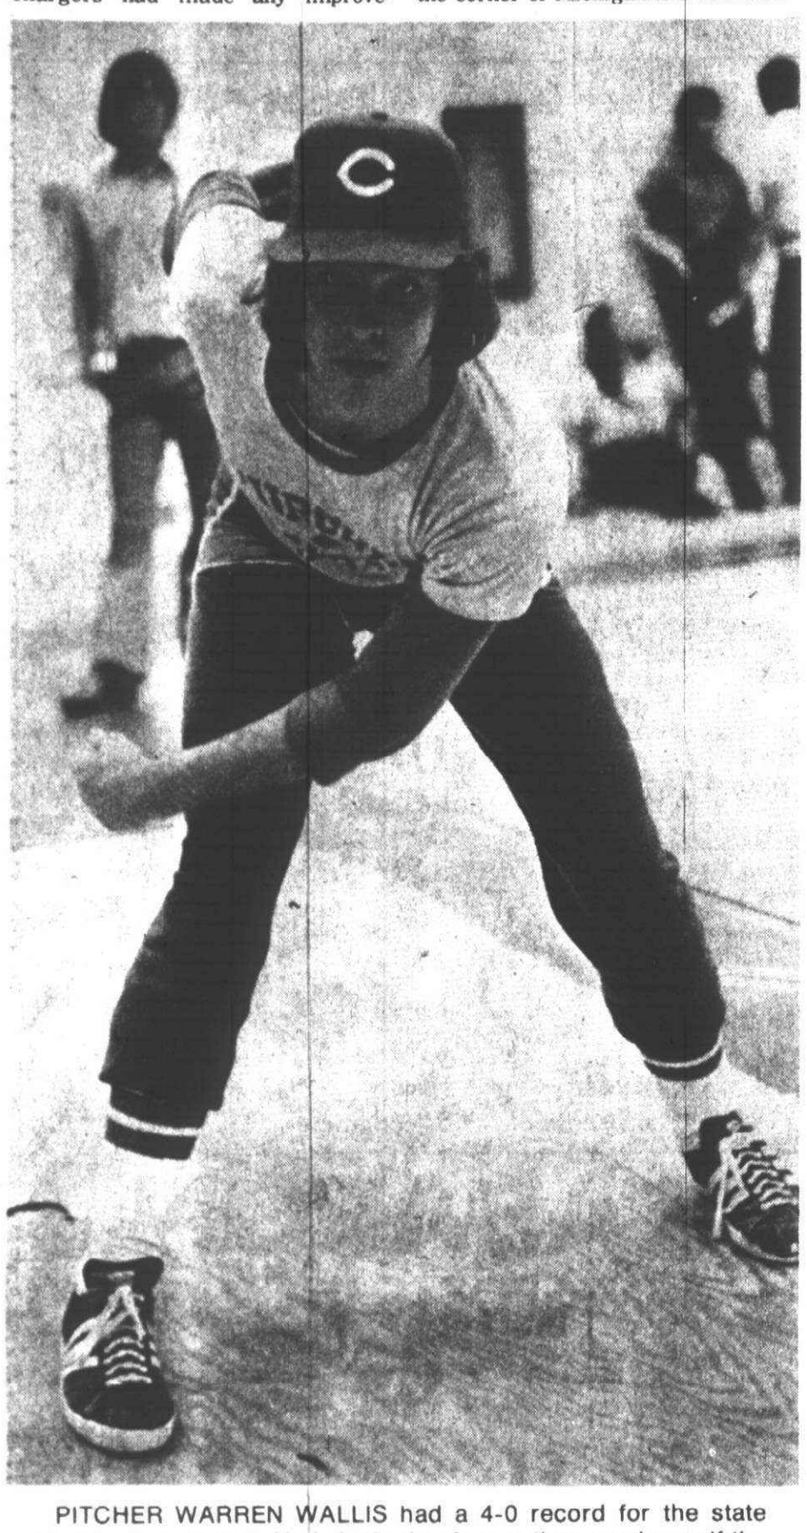
Defending champs must rebuild

Churchill finds baseball ranks thin

The Livonia Churchill baseball team is definitely not as good as it was a year ago.

And a good thing, because if the Chargers had made any improvements over last year's 24-2 state Class A championship squad, the Michigan High School Athletic Association might make them move their show to the corner of Michigan and Trumbell.



PITCHER WARREN WALLIS had a 4-0 record for the state champions last year. He is looked to for another good year if the Chargers are to dominate again this season. (Staff photo by Art Emmanuel)

"Of course I was more optimistic then, than this year. Last year I felt that we would win our league title and make a run in the tournament," said Churchill coach Roger Frayer.

Frayer was standing in the crowded gymnasium at the Livonia school watching sophomore pitcher-outfielder Bill Bardwell have no particular luck throwing curveballs at various brave souls during a bunting drill.

"Of course that was an exceptional team last year," he continued.

EXCEPTIONAL IT WAS. The Chargers marched all the way to the state title, the first of a team variety in Livonia's history. His team smashed Hazel Park 10-1 in the state finals.

But 11 players including seven starters have departed via graduation. A measure of the worth of those players can be found in the fact that seven are now playing college baseball and one has made the professional ranks.

So Frayer is faced with the task of rebuilding. And the ranks are thin.

Hardest hit was the pitching corps where Dan Panzoff (10-0), Kevin Nelson (8-1) and Andy Coppola (5-0) have departed. Only Warren Wallis and Dan Bobowlski return. That pair had a combined 7-1 record last season.

Other pitching help is looked for from converted outfielder Kurt Pitcher, who at 6-2, 218 pounds was a standout defensive end for the Churchill grid team last season and sophomores Hardwell and Dave Schomber.

B.J. LaJoie and Ronnie Griffith form an exceptional double play combination and catching is no problem as long as Jay Nelson avoids injury. Sophomore Mark Galasso shows promise in the outfield, but beyond that, times are tough.

"OVERALL THIS CLUB is not as fast as last year's. I would have to say that we will be an underdog in our league," Frayer said realistically.

The team to which Churchill will be an underdog is Plymouth Canton. The Chiefs have everyone back from last year and should rule the Western Six.

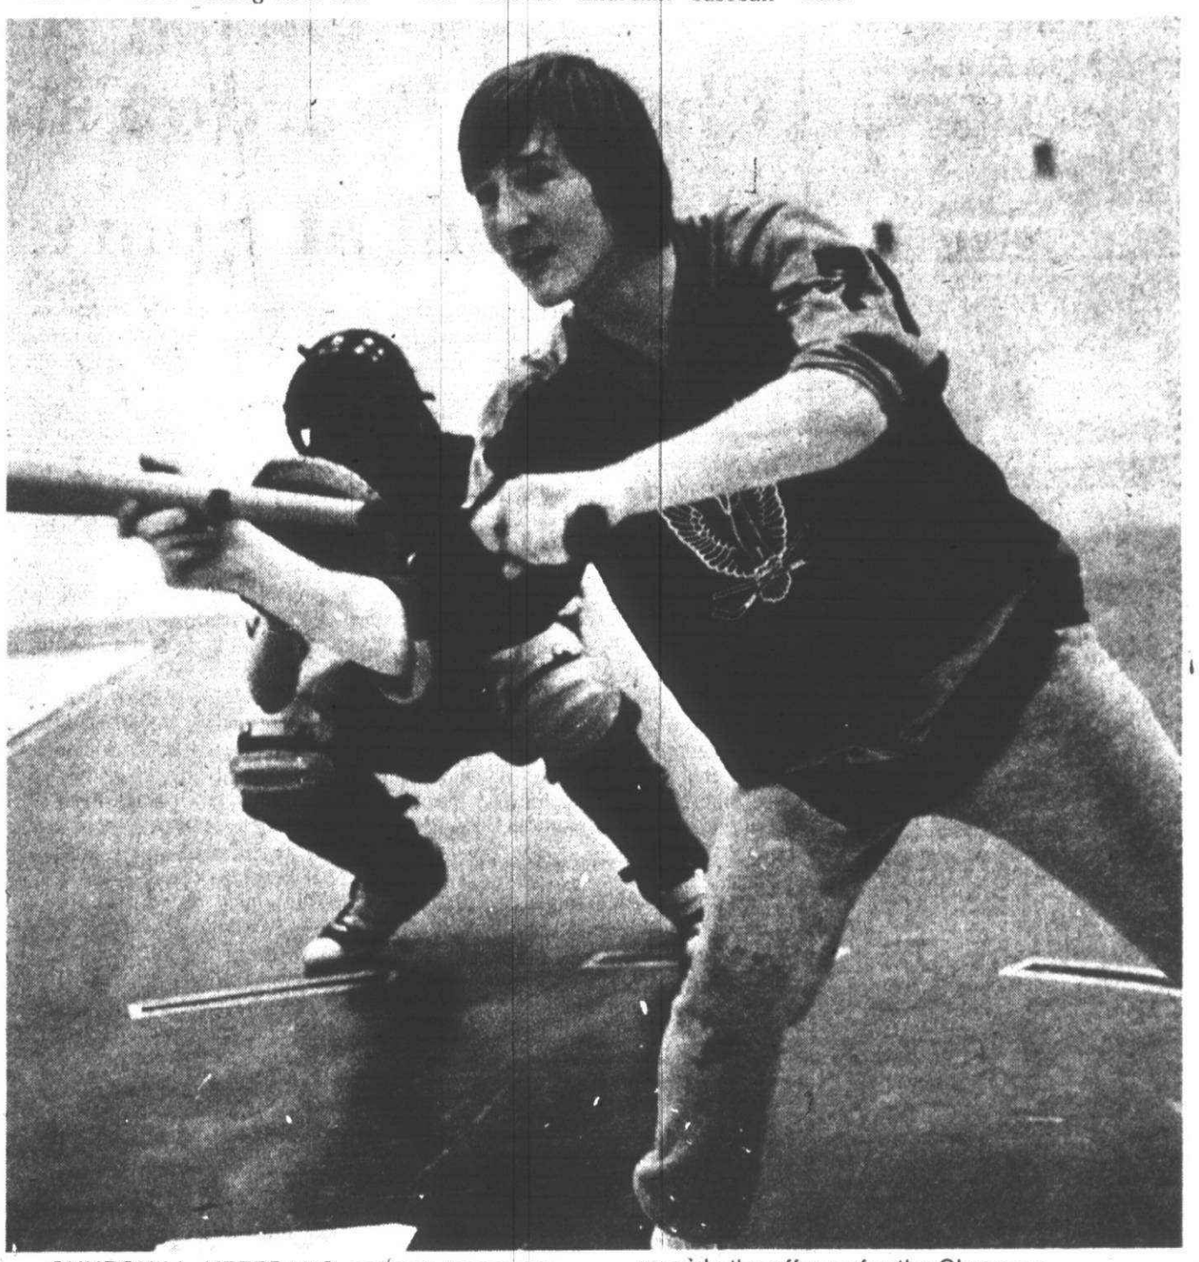
"But this is a great baseball league," Frayer said. "Everyone talks about how good the Suburban Eight is athletically, but in the four years that this state's had a baseball tournament, we've had one state champ and two runnersup from this league. That's not bad."

While Frayer realizes the competition will be tough, he's far from being down on his own team.

"This is a hard working team and the fact that we are experienced winners will help us. No one has ever repeated as state champions, but it would be nice to repeat," he said.

The Livonia Churchill baseball team, indeed is not as good as it was last year. But Frayer put it best.

"We're still the state champions until they take our title away on the field."



CHURCHILL VETERANS second baseman Ronnie Griffith and catcher Jay Nelson will provide the offense for the Chargers.

New AAU directors lays down goals

By RON HINGST

Dr. Dennis Sprandel doesn't want to topple over the apple cart, although he would like to rearrange a few of the apples.

Sprandel, who earned a doctorate degree from Michigan State University in athletic administration, was appointed executive director of the Michigan Amateur Athletic Union (MAAU) earlier this year. He replaced the outgoing director Sidney Fox.

The MAAU began in 1923. Today, the group registers amateur athletes, conducts and sanctions amateur athletic events.

SPRANDEL, A former professor at MSU's evening school, is unique in that he is the first graduate of athletic administration to head the Michigan group and one of a few such grads across the country to work with the AAU.

"Athletic administration in college is just beginning in this country," Sprandel said in an interview earlier this week from his rather modest Detroit office. "Canada is much farther advanced than us in this field."

Athletic administration in United States colleges is a product of the late sixties. Ohio University was one of the first institutions to offer the curriculum and it also had the distinction of gaining some poor publicity.

Published reports indicated that graduates of the program experienced trouble landing jobs or performing in the ranks of professional sports management.

"WHAT WE have is many disappointed people running ticket offices," Sprandel said. "Although I do have the experience much of my work was at the theoretical level. The AAU will be a good testing ground for many of the ivory tower theories I've been writing about."

In addition to his formal education credentials, Sprandel played baseball at Albion College and managed amateur baseball while teaching at the University of Arizona.

An estimated 200 clubs are affiliated with the MAAU which are spread into 22 sports while more than half the MAAU registrations belong to swimming.

Sprandel, 33, listed an energetic series of goals he hopes to see the Michigan AAU realize. While emphasizing he is not a about to tear down what the MAAU has built up, Sprandel did say he would like to institute some "basic management principles" in his office, which incidentally serves the entire state.

"I REALIZE some people might be skeptical of a professor sitting behind this desk, but my predecessor was a public relations man and a very good one," Sprandel said. "My background is in administration."

A policy making Board of Managers governs the MAAU. The 16-man group is allowed 15 votes — one each — with one emeritus position. Sprandel does not vote and a Board of Governors, comprised of persons from each sport, represents the state group at the national level.

The MAAU exceeded its estimated $59,000 budget for fiscal 1974 by $6,000 and one of Sprandel's top priorities is to get the group out of the red. The non-profit organization draws its revenues from percentages of individual member registration fees and club dues and 10 per cent of entry fees for special events.

"We can't keep operating on a shoestring," the recently appointed executive director said. "We do need money."

SPRANDEL FELT that the future of the MAAU was limited only by the Michigan population.

"Because money is drying up, many high schools are dropping some sports," he said. "The AAU is the logical choice. It is more than just a group which sends athletes to the Olympics. Amateur athletics offers a chance to compete and have fun. Afterall, athletics is fun and I think you are going to see this 'play for fun' idea increase in Michigan."

Sprandel, a native of Little Falls, Minn., also sees a resource outside the Metroplitan Detroit area.

"We are small fish in Detroit because we have to compete with the professional teams in the city for publicity. I'm very much in favor of visibility for the AAU throughout the state."

Although MAAU reports listed individual membership at 15,000, Sprandel thought the number was closer to 11,000. He added that he hopes to double both the individual and club memberships.

"THERE ARE many opportunities in the media we have not tapped," he said. "What I see is a skeleton of an organization. I feel my job should lend expertise to the volunteer field workers — that's where MAAU leadership comes from."

The professional athletic administrator noted there are 22 different state championships sponsored by the MAAU which take place with little community interest or knowledge.

"We have to put muscle into our program and monitor it," Sprandel said.

In recent years, the AAU has often surfaced publicly in controversies with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) over sending athletes to the Olympics or World Games. Sprandel flatly called the notion that the two amateur athletic groups do not get along "unfounded."

"THE CONTROVERSY with the AAU and NCAA is false," he said. "We often depend on NCAA members for use of their facilities during AAU events. Oh, there might be some difference of opinion during the Olympics, but the purpose of both groups is to help amateur athletes."

With the MAAU, Sprandel hopes some old fashion organizational techniques, applied through the relatively new field of trained athletic athletic administrators, can put the state's AAU into high gear.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL'S BILL REARDON displays the winning form that earned him the shot put championship in last Saturday's Spartan Relays at Michigan State University. Reardon changed his style just prior to this season and the results have made him the premier high school athlete at his event in the state. (Staff Photos by Art Emanuel)

Charger Reardon's toss takes shot event at Spartan Relays

Most athletes will set a goal at the beginning of the season, work hard all year and, in the end, either achieve or, more often, fall short of that goal.

It took Livonia Churchill's Bill Reardon exactly one track meet to achieve his goal however as he led a group of area athletes in the Spartan Relays at Michigan State University.

The husky senior Charger, who co-captained the Churchill grid team last fall let loose with a toss of 55 feet, nine inches to win the shot put event by more than one foot over his closest rival. Simultaneously, he achieved the goal which he had set for himself at the beginning of the year.

"I wanted to get over 55 feet this year. But I've already set a goal of 58 feet for myself now. I'd also like to win the state championship," Reardon said.

A 58-FOOT PUT might do just that. Last year the event went in 57-10 at the state finals.

Reardon's toss came in his second of three in the finals.

"When I released it, everything felt really good. I knew it was out there but I was still surprised that it was that far," Reardon said.

His coach, Bob Armstrong, said he was confident Reardon could win the event.

"There's not a more dedicated athlete in the school. He worked out at home all winter and he had a toss of 55-4 last week in a triangular meet," Armstrong said.

Armstrong is confident that his pupil can hit the 58 foot mark.

"Although it takes a while to adjust, usually distances increase by a foot or two when you move outdoors," he said.

ARMSTRONG SAID Reardon must perfect his technique if he is to have a shot at winning the state championship, however.

"It's not that his technique isn't good right now, because it's very good. But it must become more automatic," Armstrong said.

Churchill head coach Fred Price noted a marked improvement in Reardon over the last three weeks.

"Actually he's improved a great deal all along. He did 48 feet as a sophomore and 52-1 as a junior. But in the last three weeks, he's just come around," Price said.

Reardon, who bench-presses 320 pounds, changed his technique just before the start of the season. He now begins in an "up" position rather than in a "down" position.

"That way I get farther across the ring before releasing," he said.

ALTHOUGH HE PLAYED both ways for the Charger football team, Reardon said track is his sport.

"I prefer track. Maybe it's because I didn't have a real good year in football, but it seems that you get back out of track what you put into it."

If he keeps improving, what Reardon might get out of track this year is a state championship.

Churchill got another stellar performance in the relays as Rick Powers came through with a fifth in the pole vault with a 12-6 effort.

Livonia Stevenson and Westland John Glenn also had two in the top five in the 85-school relays.

Ken Brown took a fourth in the mile for the Spartans in a time of 4:23.1 and Paul Lokar tied for fourth in the high jump with a lead of 6 feet.

Glenn was paced by Tom Jakubowski whose 8.5 time in the 70 yard high hurdles was good for second place.

Tom Vakulowski also scored for the Rockets with a leap of 20 feet, one-quarter inch, for fourth place in the long jump.

Art Kitze continued his standout performance for Garden City East. The senior distance man, who placed in last week's Huron Relays, came through for a third place in the Spartans with a 9:36.8 clocking in the two mile run.

Redford's Page signs with Cowboys

Mike Page, former Redford Township resident and an all-state selection for Detroit Country Day School, has signed on as a free-agent with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

Page, who starred on Country Day's football team from 1969-71, later was a grid stand-out for Harvard University where he was named to the All-Ivy League second unit.

Page won a starting berth as a defensive back in 1973 and last year led the team in interceptions. He also saw extensive service as a punt return specialist last year as the Crimson gained a share of the Ivy League title.

While a Redford Township resident, Page participated in the Redford Township Junior Athletic Association program. Later he played on the 1969 state championship West-7 Sky Florist Babe Ruth baseball team which went on to become national runnerup.

At Country Day, Page was All-State in football, basketball and track.

Page graduated magna cum laude from the Beverly Hills school and made the dean's list at Harvard.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

It will be a long time before the performance of the Detroit delegation in the women's state tournament will be forgotten.

They made their annual appearance over the past week and all they did was take over leadership in the four divisions of actual pinfall competition.

Topping the list was the Pine Tree Bowl team, captained by Sue Sternett, that took over the top rung in the team standings with a 2803 count. The team had games of 953, 899 and 951.

Bonnie Barnes, of Farmington, contributed a 570 to the big count.

In the doubles Pat Roth and Mary Mohacsi went to the top with 1240. Pat finished her turn with 1810 to take the all-events lead. Kathy Springs topped the singles with a 676 that included a 279 game.

Among the odd experiences was a 588 series registered by Marge Kropacek, of Plymouth. She opened with a 200 came back with 201 and closed with 187. In that finish she not only knocked over the 3-10 (baby) split, but it was an all spare game.

FRED HAMLIN proprietor of Farmington Lanes, played the leading role in one of the strangest stories of the entire season Sunday morning.

Noticing that scores were not up to par in the Parent-Youth league, he stepped to the microphone and delivered a bit of advice, which he thought would be helpful.

In glowing terms he called attention to the need of relaxing.

He told the youngsters and their parents they had to calm down if they wished to score well. "Just take your time and be calm about it," he said.

With that advice delivered and hoping for the best he then took his turn on the drives. You might guess what happened. He started his first game with five open frames.

He's still laughing.

WHEN IT COMES to close finishes, you'd have a hard time beating the finish put on by the Westland Bowl classic last week.

Joe Charron paced the field with 692, and Frank Ashcraft was next with 689, Harley Trumbull was third with 688 and Bill Walker had a closing game of 268 to finish fourth with 681.

THERE'S ANOTHER Mohacsi on the way to stardom on the lanes.

While his mother, Mary, was making her bid for honors in the women's state tournament over the weekend Mark stole the show in the junior competition with a 659 series.

After starting with a 176 he added a 201 and then went on a strike spree, piling up nine in a row for a finishing 279.

THE WOMEN DID some fancy scoring at Farmington Lanes during the week.

Virginia Harris set the pace in the Ladies Classic with a 256 in 54 and Jan Vanderwill had a high single of 264. In the mixed classic Pat Loomis had a 228 in 624 and Jean Denbeck posted a 245 in a 593 series.

In the Teen Classic Jim Hamlin had a 602 that included a 225 game and Bill Stephenson inserted a 244 in 592. Meanwhile, in the parent-youth league 11-year-old Karen Bell had a 194 in 458.

THE TRIPLICATE club, got a new member at Mayflower Lanes when Barbara Kelly rolled identical games of 147.

Mickey Binder turned in the best series among the women with a county of 577. Mary Birgeja had 562 with a 224 game and Stella Gajewski had a 220 in 509.

The split converters were at it again with Jan Lang toppling the 5-6-10 and Joyce Peters knocking over the 5-8-10.

Among the men Joe Germak had high game of the week with a 286.

JIM SHELP EARNED MEMBERSHIP in the 700 club at Bel-Aire by putting together games of 209, 249, and 242 for 700 to pace the classic. At this figure he beat out Jerry Pepple who had a 279 in 686 and Dave Greluski landed third with 678.

In the businessmen's circuit Joe Gordella landed on top with a count of 651 and Pete Bumpus had an odd experience while taking second place. After games of 234 and 247 Rover must have bitten him for he slumped to a 163 for 644. In the senior house loop Bill Trachail had a 257 in 645.

Dorothy Bashara lead the women's parade with a 531 in the mixed league, with Doreen Feldspach a close second at 528. Kay Jackson trailed the two leaders with 503.

Girls track season opens: Redford Union bombs Pats

Redford Union and Livonia Franklin got together for what was supposed to be the first girls track meet of the year. But it turned out to be no contest at all as the Panthers won all but one event, taking the meet 70-17.

"I have to be real pleased with the girls. We're only in the second year of our program but we are much stronger than last year," said RU Coach Mike Krafchak.

Redford Union, which finished 3-3 last year, will run at North Farmington next Tuesday.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

By DOC MINARD

Believe it or not and despite all of the growling about the 1975 dates, Northville Downs just completed its most successful season in 32 years with 82 nights during the winter.

Perhaps the unusual success proves Northville Downs Executive Director John Carlo's contention that winter dates are the best if the plant has the proper facilities and location.

There isn't any question that Northville has the facilities but the location is anything but the best and will remain such until the new network of super highways is completed. Then it is our belief Carlo will bid for the winter dates instead of fighting them.

THE 'DOWNS rang down the curtain on its 32nd season Tuesday with all-time betting and attendance records. Inasmuch as that is the criteria for the success or failure of a meeting, then it must be said that business was booming as never before.

For instance, the former mark for a single night's wagering was $608,000, set back in the summer of 1971. This year that figure was bettered several times with a high of $678,038 on Saturday, March 29.

There was a time not so many years ago when Carlo and his partners were on cloud nine when the handle soared over $500,000. None had ever thought it would reach that level.

Then just last Saturday there were high hopes the half-mile track would reach the $700,000 barrier for the first time. Only a fat payoff in a trifecta and a couple of longshots killed those hopes. As it was, wagering totaled $675,595.

FOR THOSE who are interested, and we sometimes wonder if the average racegoer cares that much about statistics, here are the revised statistics at Northville.

Most wagered on a Monday, 4/7—$594,868; Tuesday, 4/1—$431,704; Thursday, 3/27—$510,432; Friday, 4/4—$616,701; and Saturday, 3/29—$678,038.

Then there was the largest nightly double pool of $60,674 on April 5 and the largest single race pool on the seventh race on April 5 with $97,588.

Just think—$97,588 on a single race in the 32nd season when the total handle for an eight race program was often $20,000 and less back in the first year of operation in 1944. That's how much harness racing has improved in Michigan.

John Konesky, III, the third generation of Koneskys to race at Northville Downs, captured the driving championship with a winning percentage of .407. The Pemberville, O. native finished well ahead of second place Tom Harmer.

Slender Ted Smith, of Mason, was the winningest driver with a total of 36 firsts in 153 starts. Each was awarded a trophy by Cecil Ward, a super harness racing enthusiast who operates a trophy dispensing outfit in Detroit.

THE DETROIT RACING Association staged its first Sunday program and appeared very satisfied with the turnout of more than 12,000 and a handle of slightly more than $1.1 million. Naturally the mutuel clerks' union wasn't entirely happy since members would have received double time if the wagering had reached $1.2 million.

Vice President and General Manager Dick Wilson was pleased with the turnout and is looking forward to even bigger and better Sunday turnouts as the days get warmer.

Meanwhile, the DRC is making plans for its annual Old Times Day on Saturday, April 19 when the prices will be turned away back, admission to the grandstand reduced and youngsters under 12 admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

It will be the only time of the DRC meeting that kids 12 and under will be admitted. Seems Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley frowns on kids at the track, and rightfully so, and has allowed each of the tracks one day for the kids. Other than that they'll be barred from the premises.

Getting back to Good Old Times, there'll be dime hot dogs, and prices of five cents for pop, popcorn and ice cream.

Admission to the grandstand will be 50 cents and the management is planning a number of Old Time events for the afternoon. It should be an interesting afternoon for all and especially for the kids who'll be able to eat until they burst on the dime hot dogs.

Schoolcraft plans active sports month

Schoolcraft College will be a hotbed of sporting and sports-related activities for the next month as several events of local and national interest are slated.

This weekend (April 11 and 12) the college will host the NJCAA invitational volleyball tournament with several teams from across the country. Last year Schoolcraft finished second.

United State Olypic bicycle coach Mike Walden will conduct a workshop on April 15. Interested individuals may register at the Schoolcraft physical education office.

The National Paddleball Association championships are scheduled on April 17 through 20. Events will include masters, open and women's singles and doubles.

On May 2, Schoolcraft will hold its third annual "Fitness is Ageless" seminar. Designed for individuals or agencies responsible for or interested in physical activity for the older adult, the seminar will run from from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The state AAU freestyle wrestling tournament will be held on May 3. It is co-sponsored by Schoolcraft and the Michigan Wrestling Club.

The Eric Hawkins Dance Company will offer master classes at Schoolcraft on May 7. Time for the free classes is 1 to 5 p.m.

For further information on these events, individuals should contact the physical education office at the college.

Don't forget cucumbers

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Now that spring planting is just around the corner, don't forget cucumbers. We have some cucumbers that can be grown in pots or tubs, and which can be trained to grow on trellises or strings, taking up very little space around the house.

If you own a greenhouse and want to grow cucumbers, use those varieties bred for greenhouse production only, not for outdoors. The European or Greenhouse cucumbers cannot be grown outside as they are seedless and self-pollinating. Any additional pollinating from bees, insects or wind would cause seed pods to form in the cucumber and make it gourd-like and unusable. Make sure you order the right kind of cuke seed.

THERE ARE several "all-female" cucumbers available for the home gardener. Princess, one of the hybrids, is early (60 days) and has an all-female parent. A few male seeds are enclosed with females for higher yields.

Usually the all-female vines start to bear very early and some of the fruits are crooked and mishapened. The normal cukes are slender and fairly long, greenish in color and great to eat.

If you're one of those who can't eat cucumbers because they "talk back," to you, try the Burpless 26, a Japanese hybrid, long, slim and curved.

The skin is so tender you don't have to peel it before eating. Marketmore 70 is a very dependable producer, carrying resistance to scab and mosaic diseases. Victory is an all America winner, ripening in 50 days, probably the earliest slicing cucumber.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We have some nut trees which seldom bear nuts. We heard that if you beat the bark with a ball bat, it will make the trees bear. Is this true?"

Answer: Whacking the trunk of a tree or driving nails into it have little to do to making it bear. Iron has nothing to do with bearing of nuts. Often it is the age of the tree; some varieties bear earlier than others. For example: McIntosh apple trees start bearing at the age of six or seven, while golden delicious begins to fruit at four to six years.

Weather at pollinating time can affect bearing. Bees are lazy in bad weather and don't work on the blooms.

Sometimes a spring frost will kill the blossoms, preventing set of nuts and fruit. Sometimes whacking the trunk might act like ringing the bark does, but it's not worth the effort.

WAYNE JONES SAYS:

Don't wait to do your landscaping because you don't know how! We will draw a plan for your home, and give you our expert advice on what to plant and how to plant it. We draw free plans to scale for our customers. Just bring in your house and lot dimensions and a picture, if possible. Your title survey usually has all this information on it. We can do the planting for you, for an additional labor charge.

Dunning Museum locates curator

By W.W. EDGAR

PLYMOUTH—The long search for a director to take charge of the Plymouth Historical Museum has ended.

It came to a successful conclusion Friday when Phillip E. Mroczkowski, currently assistant director at the Monroe County Historical Museum, agreed to take over on May 1.

His selection came from a field of more than 60 candidates who have been interviewed during the past year and a half and brings to the Museum a man who has been interested in history of all kinds since his early school days.

"It took quite a while to find our man," Margaret Dunning donor of the building that houses the museum, stated, "but I think we found the one we wanted.

"HE HAS SEEN the museum in its present state and likes it," she continued, "and he is anxious to get to work getting things in order for an official opening within several months."

The new director and his wife, Carol, made a complete tour of the building and were loud in their praise for the work that has been done thus far.

"I think it has a great potential and I am looking forward to some interesting times after we get organized."

Mroczkowski, 29, is a graduate of Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo and holds degrees in American history, literature and culture and special honors in early American history. Presently he is working on his masters degree in American history. His wife is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and has a master's degree from Western Michigan University.

Prior to his assignment at the Monroe Museum, Mroczkowski spent two years in the Medical Corps of the U.S. army and was stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C.

His acceptance of the position was a great relief to Miss Dunning, who has waited patiently to complete the memorial tribute to her parents by opening the building to the public.

SINCE THE BUILDING was dedicated in May 1973, Miss Dunning and members of the Historical Society were several times on the verge of getting the man they wanted. And each time they met with disappointment.

One candidate, for instance, accepted expenses to fly here from Oregon, only to change his mind when he returned home and looked again at his home on the Pacific Ocean.

On another occasion the candidate was well pleased with the future, "provided you lower the ceilings."

Meanwhile, Clarence Moore, current president of the Society quietly has gone about his work of constructing the store fronts on old Main Street that will be shown to the visitors.

With him, Norma Cassady, the curator when the building was finished, worked patiently with a group, registering the thousands of items that were contributed from community residents. She retired, however, at the end of her term and left the Museum without a work force.

Only a few permanent gifts have been placed. Among them is a large mural, showing the downtown intersection of Main Street and Penniman Avenue on July 4, 1904. There isn't an auto in sight. This was the gift of the Rotary Club of Plymouth.

Another prize exhibit is the only model still available of the Alter car that was manufactured in Plymouth back in the 20s.

There will be plenty of others. That's why both Margaret Dunning and the new director are anxious to get to work for a grand opening as soon as possible.

MARGARET DUNNING, donor of the building that houses the Plymouth Historical Museum, welcomes the museum's long-awaited director, Phillip E. Mroczkowski, who will begin his new job on May 1. (Staff photo by Mitchell Booth)

5 earn Merit scholarships

Five area residents are among the 1,300 high school seniors nationwide named as winners of corporatE-sponsored four-year National Merit Scholarships.

The scholarships are financed by more than 280 corporations, foundations, professional associations, unions and trusts.

Area winners include Susan P. Baisch, Lynne Nicolau, and Mary E. Wojtan of Livonia, Philip D. Schulte of Plymouth, and Mary H. Seaberg of Westland.

THIS IS THE FIRST of three groups of merit scholars to be named in the 20th annual nationwide competition, administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) of Evanston, Ill.

In 1975, more than 3,700 seniors will win Merit Scholarships valued at more than $8 million.

Each of the corporate-sponsored scholarship winners will receive between $1,000 and $6,000 over four years of college. The majority of corporate-sponsored scholarships are for children of company employes or who reside in areas or communities where the sponsoring company has plants or operations.

A few are designated finalists because they plan to pursue particular fields of study and careers the sponsor wishes to encourage.

The annual stipend for a corporate-sponsored four-year scholarship is determined on an individual basis, but is generally between $250 to $1,500 per year. The amount is meant to provide the difference between the cost of attending college and the amount the family can be expected to provide for yearly college expenses.

Beside winners of the corporate-sponsored scholarships announced today, two other major announcements of merit scholars will be made in 1975.

On April 23, the 1,000 winners of National Merit $1,000 scholarships will be announced and on April 30 NMSC will release the names of more than 1,400 students being offered college-sponsored four-year Merit Scholarships this year.

Greenfield Village welcomes spring

Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Musuem in Dearborn welcome spring with an extension of hours and visitor services.

In the village, the winter schedule of guided tours has ended. Guides or craftsmen are now stationed in more than 25 of the historic homes and shops. Nearly 25 more buildings, many with interpretative tape recordings, are open for visitors to walk into or look in.

Throughout the village, craftsmen are at work demonstrating the skills of their forebears. The blacksmith, glass blower, potter, silversmith, spinner and weaver are busy seven days a week. Demonstrations of rug hooking and dried flower arranging also may be seen.

The Greenfield Village Railroad has begun daily operation, taking visitors on a two-mile trip around the village perimeter. Carriage tours are offered daily. Model Ts and surreys also have started weekend operation and haywagons will begin on April 12, pony wagons on May 3 and the paddlewheel steamboat Suwanee on May 15.

The village's Suawanee Park opens for weekend operation in mid-April. Here, visitors may sample such turn-of-the-century entertainments as an arcade complete with antique game machines and test of skill and a 1913 merry-go-round with 40 animals. Both begin weekend operation n April 12; daily operation in May.

The village really comes alive with activity May 15-18 for the Country Fair of Yesteryear. This 26th annual event features parades, marching bands, a variety of shows and demonstrations of home crafts.

Spring fever also reigns in Henry Ford Museum where 14 acres of displays tell the story of America's development in the mechanical and decorative arts. Along the Street of Early American Shops, the candlemaker, broommaker, tinsmith and pewterer are at work.

Beginning April 11, museum visitors may see a special exhibit, "Colonial Agriculture: A Contemporary View." Drawing upon the extensive museum collections, this exhibit presents a picture of American farm life in the years surrounding the Revolutionary War. The exhibit continues through June. 2

Village hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekends and holidays. Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

A separate admission to either the village or the museum is $2.50 for adults and $1 for children six through 14. Admission will be $2.75 for adults and $1.25 for children six through 12. Children under six are admitted free.

The story revolves around a self-taught black preacher, Purlie Victorious Judson, who returns to a scene of southern serfdom intent on opening an abandoned church. Purlie tries to outwit the Ol' Cap'n who owns the plantation and, in the end strikes a blow for freedom.

The Bonstelle cast is headed by Rex Ellis, a member of the Hilberry Repertory Company, as Purlie; Deborah Stover as Lutiebelle; Argenia Cecilia Ford as Missy and Thurman Briggs as Gitlow. The cast also includes Jim Siatkowski, Marion Flowers, Ron Kjellberg and Sybl Charlette Wilson.

Mayor aids theater's search for permanent home

By SUE ROSIEK

The Wayne-Westland Civic Theater (WWCT) soon may receive permanent headquarters if the City of Westland's application for community development funds is approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and if Westland Mayor Eugene McKinney's budget for fiscal year 1976 is approved by the city council.

That's a lot of ifs, but according to WWCT President Al La Croix of Plymouth, it's more encouraging than the group's present situation.

The WWCT, currently stages its plays in John Glenn High School Auditorium or St. John Episcopal Church, both in Westland. It's become increasingly difficult, however, to meet expenses after paying rent and maintenance fees, says La Croix.

THE WWCT thought it had the problem solved when it petitioned the City of Wayne last fall for use of the vacant Wayne Recreation Building on Michigan Avenue, east of Wayne Road.

With help from the Michigan Council for the Arts (MCA), the theater group presented renovation plans and budget proposals to the Wayne City Council.

"We've been put off, laid aside and postponed because the city (Wayne) can't decide what to do with the building," says La Croix.

The WWCT was supposed to have had a decision by March, he adds.

McKinney's proposal for the WWCT is part of the community centers project for Westland, in which available buildings in the north and south sections of the city would be used for community recreation. Originally named senior citizen centers, McKinney says they would be drop-in spots for all ages, and available for many different activities.

THE BUDGET for 1976 takes the first effective step toward providing funds to supplement community development dollars to open these centers, outlines McKinney.

The centers would include the old Cooper Elementary School at Middle Belt and Ann Arbor Trail, and the present recreation center on Dorsey. The recreation administrative offices would be moved into the present police station which will be vacant when a new station is completed.

McKinney says additional funds are allocated to effect the move into the new police station this fall. The two centers and the multi-purpose arena will provide three facilities within a reasonable distance for all Westlanders to enjoy.

The city already has approached the Livonia School District on leasing the vacated Cooper School, adds McKinney.

"I'm not saying either of these building would be given to the theater exclusively, but they would be offered use of the buidling," explains McKinney. "It could be either building, depending on renovation plans and which one is most suitable."

Funds for maintaining the community centers have been included in the mayor's budget, which must be approved by the city council by June 1. The community development dollars can not be used to operate these centers says McKinney.

La CROIX feels McKinney's proposal is a "fantastic idea." "We've done so many indepth studies on stage reconstruction, temporary seating and lighting, that we could renovate anything," says La Croix.

The permanent facility also would be a financial boost to the theater group explains La Croix.

"We're a non-prof't organization in the strictest sense of the word." The WWCT pays $1,000 to rent auditorium and storage space for a production.

The cost just about drains the theater's reserves and limits what shows the theater can present.

Scheduling also has become a problem. In a rented facility such as John Glenn the theater group has had to cut back productions because of a clash with the school's play schedule.

The WWCT which began in 1959 as an adult education theater class, presently has 60 members.

Madonna traces musical history

Madonna College Chorale will launch its celebration of the country's bicentennial with "The Beat of Freedom," a concert tracing American history through music on Sunday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Activities Center, 36600 Schoolcraft in Livonia.

The chorale, a group of 50 singers from throughout the metropolitan area, is under the direction of Mrs. Patricia Derry, Madonna College music instructor.

The group will perform selections from 1776 to the present. Songs will reflect the periods of the Revolutionary and Civil wars, the Gay 90s and Roaring 20s, and also will include American folk songs and Negro spirituals.

Among the selections will be "John Henry," "I've Been Working on the Railroad," "Deep River," "Mama, Look Sharp," from the Broadway musical "1776," and "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Also a Gay 90s medley featuring the chorale's Beauty Shop Quartet, "Birth of the Blues," "Stardust," and a medley of "Aquarius-Let the Sunshine In."

A continuing narration by Patrick Kenney of Birmingham will accompany the music and a slide show of American scenery will conclude the program. The script was written by Rosemary Tzareff of Westland, a Madonna graduate.

Sharon Cooper of Plymouth will accompany the chorale and Mary Beth Purcott of West Bloomfield will be student director.

Soloists include Wanda Boraden and Debbie Nestead of Detroit, Vincent Currie, Veda McNutt and Donna Sleby of Plymouth.

Tickets at $1.50 general admission, and $1 for students are students are available in advance in the college bookstore or at the door before the show.

VINCENT CURRIE of Plymouth sings the role of the dying soldier in "Mama, Look Sharp" from the Broadway musical "1776" during the Madonna bicentennial program.

Bicentennial meeting

The Wayne County Bicentennial Committee will meet April 17 at 8 p.m. on the 13th floor of the City-County Building, Detroit.

"If you would like to get involved in the celebration of the birth of our county, this is your opportunity," says county commissioner Erv Steiner (R-Grosse Pointe), committee chairman. "We need the help and participation of the residents of all the counties, to hold the world's largest parade, enabling us to turn the nation's attention to Wayne County."

SC choirs in concert

The Schoolcraft College choirs will present a spring concert April 11 at 8 p.m. in Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Livonia.

Under the direction of Bradley Bloom, the Schoolcraft Chorale will open the program with "Dixit and Laudate Dominum" from Mozart's Solemn Vesper's. Soloists are Jacqueline Kozyn, soprano; Deidi Hepler, alto; Jerome Westerman, tenor; and Dale Hicks, bass.

The chorale will perform three songs by Aaron Copland based on American folk tunes and "Simple Gifts," "Long Time Ago" and "I Bought Me a Cat."

Mozart's "Requiem" will be sung by the combined Schoolcraft Symphonic Choir and chorale groups. Soprano Valerie Loiselle, Mary Morgan and Jacqueline Kozyn along with alto Margaret Graham, and tenor Robert Cassidy will solo in the work.

According to Bloom, the Requiem is full of dramatic musical contrasts and clearly exhibits Mozart's highest musical maturity. "Because Mozart died before the Requiem was completed, it was finished by one of his students," Bloom adds.

Holy Cross Church is at 30650 Six Mile Road just east of Merriman. There is no admission charge.

College style scheduling improves student morale

By DENNY COFFMAN

WAYNE—Permitting Wayne-Westland high school students to prepare their own class schedules "college style," has brought better performance, according to George Bell, Wayne Memorial High School principal.

"Their achievement is better," says Bell. Though he cannot pinpoint the change with figures, he says he detects a new attitude among students.

"I can sense an improvement in morale," says Bell. "It's improved greatly since the inception of the individual scheduling system."

THE SYSTEM LETS students choose subjects, times of classes, and teachers.

They can even select classes according to degree of difficulty, through the use of the school's "phase-elective" classifications.

Each class is assigned a level of difficulty, from one to five. A class rated "one" is considered easier than a class rated "five."

All a student has to do is decide which degree of difficulty he can handle, and the teacher he can work with best and then sign up.

"Each student has more input into his own destiny," says Bell. "There is less conflict with a certain teacher, too."

Does the system tend to let students choose the easiest teacher they can find? "Not necessarily," says Bell. "Whether a teacher is easy or hard is not pertinent. They usually choose the one they like the best."

The student "grapevine," he says, generally spreads the word about which teacher is best.

The system also functions as a kind of law of supply and demand, as well.

If a course only has limited appeal, then the student demand for the course will be low.

If an insufficient number of students are interested, the unpopular course is dropped. If, on the other hand, a large number of students are interested in a course, additional sections are added.

The choice does have its limitations, however. Required basic courses cannot be done away with by the students, though they do have considerable latitude in their choice of teachers and class times.

At the heart of the individual scheduling is a computer; Bell concedes that it would be virtually impossible to have such a degree of flexibility without it.

PREVIOUSLY, THE COMPUTER had prepared each student's class schedules, arbitrarily assigning class times and instructors.

Now, however, the computer operates at the behest of the student, telling him which class is available and which is closed because of heavy demand.

"Our curriculum now reflects students' tastes much better. A student can control his own destiny within these alternatives," says Bell.

The scheduling system operates only at the high school level (grades 10-12), and has been copied by many other districts. Seniors usually get first choice and sophomores last.

John Glenn High School began the system a year after Wayne Memorial, where it has been in effect three years.

Both were innovations at the time. "But we're no longer unique," says Bell, "because we've been copied so often."

The idea, he says, was developed at conferences and in publications. "We suspected for a long time that it would be better this way," says Bell. "We had evidence that showed using computer scheduling alone depersonalized the whole procedure of enrollment.

"We learned that it would be better if students made their own decisions. The choice would be more valid. Making decisions is part of growing up. It gives students more responsibility and reflects their needs," says Bell.

Parents like the system, he says. And most of Wayne Memorial's 2,450 students like it. "Except for the kid at the end of the line, maybe," says Bell.

Midnight madness scheduled

PLYMOUTH—Plymouth merchants and businessmen in the downtown business section, Old Village and the shopping centers at the intersection of Ann Arbor and Sheldon Roads are making plans for the annual Midnight Madness sales on Wednesday, April 16.

"This is the first time we have tried such a sales event in several years," said Mrs. Dorothy Kennedy, chairman of the Retail Merchants committee of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. "We feel with all of the enthusiasm generated among the merchants it will be a big boom to business."

James McCabe, manager of the Kresge store, is chairman of the event.

"Our members have told us they are going to make this a sale customers will remember," Mrs. Kennedy said. "There will be items on sale during the four hour period from 8 p.m. to midnight that will revert back to the normal price the next day."

Such sales promotions have been tried in nearby communities with a great deal of success. The Retail Merchants committee believe this will be one of the best ever staged in Plymouth.

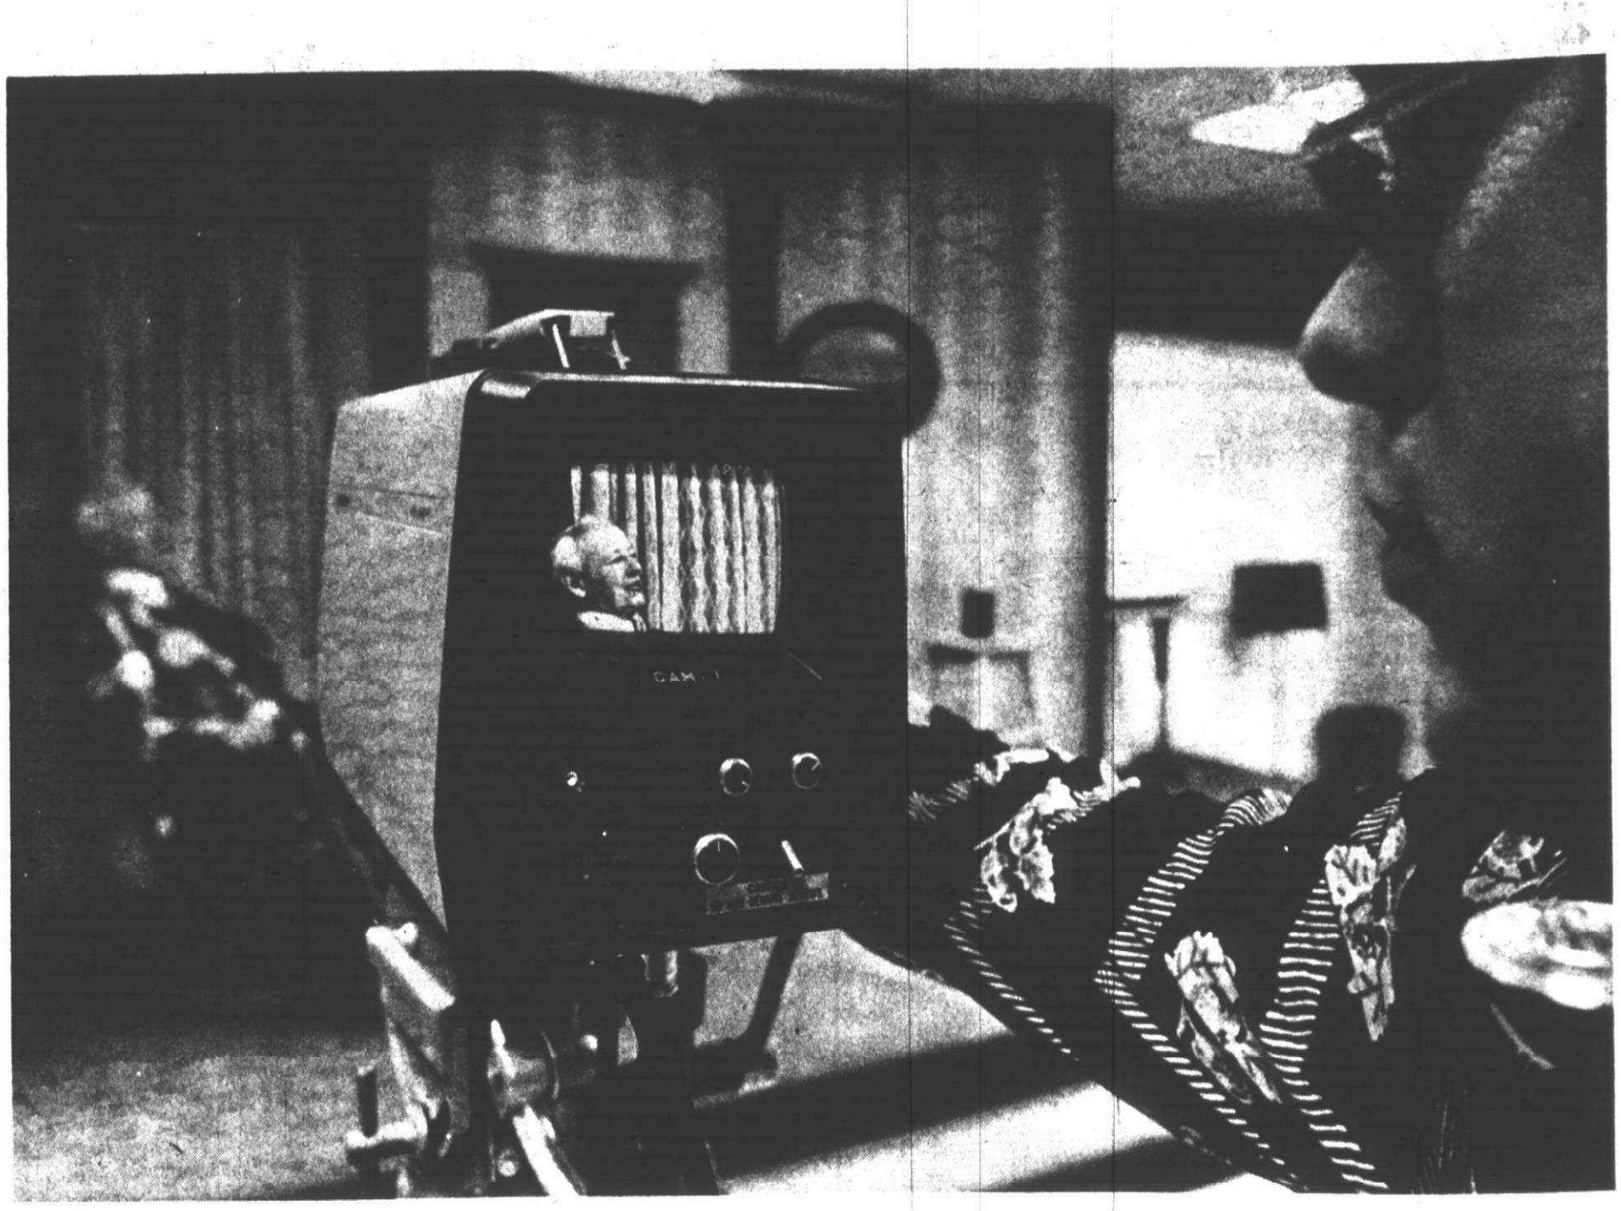
Video tape records local history



YOU CAN SEE Harry Wolfe from two angles in his rocking chair as he is being interviewed, and on the video screen as work begins on a pictorial history of Livonia. (Staff photos by Mitchell Booth)

BY SHERRY KAHAN

It looks as though realtor Harry S. Wolfe might be on his way to becoming Livonia's newest TV idol.

A resident of the area for 74 years, Wolfe is currently "starring" in a half hour videotape on the history of Livonia.

Called "Discovering Our Roots — A Folk History," the film is currently under production under the sponsorship of the Livonia Historical Commission with the cooperation of the Livonia Public Schools.

Chief catalyst in the effort is a young film-maker named Jim King, a former student of Bentley High School. Possibly it was all the talk about the bicentennial year that turned his thoughts backward to Livonia's past.

It was also the recent death of former mayor Jesse Ziegler that made him aware that the city had a past, and that few were aware of it.

"LIVONIA HAS CHANGED so fast in recent years that people aren't aware of our heritage," King said. "A lot of families and young couples move in here and don't know that the city has a rich history. It wasn't always parking lots and shopping centers."

Deciding that oral history, making use of long-time residents of the area, would be the way to go, King approached the Livonia Historical Commission with the idea of making videotapes.

He told them the project could be done cheaply by using the resources already available in the community. The commissioners gave him a nod for a pilot videotape.

WE TAKE YOU NOW to a room in Franklin High School, where a an informal run-through of the proposed videotape is about to take place.

Bustling around preparing Franklin's television equipment for shooting is Hal Waller, teacher of a course on techniques of radio and TV production. He is going to direct the endeavor.

His students are all at their stations. Wearing headphones, Todd Mapes of Westland, is preparing one camera, while Glenn Frazier readies another.

In the control room, Erich Phillips is fiddling with the audio equipment. Kathy Delinger and George Spires are checking two slide projectors, which will introduce still photographs on Livonia's past onto the tape.

OFF TO ONE SIDE King is telling Harry Wolfe about production matters. He explains that Wolfe is to sit in a rocking chair in front of a homey-looking set, previously used by Franklin students in their production of "Music Man."

King will sit next to Wolfe on a stool to do the interviewing.

Purposefully moving around and between and over the wires and equipment is Tom Dyke, King's mentor, whose company makes educational films, documentaries and commercials.

Now comes the time when the cameras are all focused, Wolfe and King are wired for sound and the sequence of the taping is arranged.

"Quiet in the studio!" calls Waller from the control room. "Hang loose," he adds, addressing his youthful technicians.

AS ONE OF HIS EARLIEST memories of Livonia, Wolfe recalled the building of a barn on the 100-acre farm his parents bought in 1901 in the area where Seven Mile and Farmington roads intersect.

"We had a barn-raising and the neighbors came over to put up the rafters," he said. "I think the carpenter must have had all the work planned in advance. I expect there was also a big meal prepared."

Wolfe's parents used to have boys come out from Detroit during the summer to help with the gardening and other chores.

"Sometimes at lunchtime we all played ball," he said.

WOLFE BELIEVES that the automobile was the invention that brought the greatest changes to the quiet rural life he first lived in Livonia.

"I was probably eight or 10 when I first saw a car," he explained. "I thought it was great."

Entertainment in those days was produced by the people in the area themselves at school and churches. However, there were a few exceptions, such as the yearly trip to visit Belle Isle.

"The depression was really rough," Wolfe recalled. "Anyone who calls this a depression, or even a recession, has never experienced a real depression. Hundred of people lost their property."

Of great importance to the development of Livonia, was the passage of the first zoning and building regulations in 1942, Wolfe said.

As a result of these and subsequent regulations, Wolfe declared "I think the city will continue to have a healthy growth and will be a good place to live." "Cut."

MICROPHONE IN HAND, Jim King records Wolfe's reminiscences.

After wedding

These guests clean up

Fifteen years ago, when Linda McDonald of Livonia was just five, her aunt was married and a couple of whimsical guests attended one of the bridal showers and the wedding reception.

They were tall and slim; a bride with a filmy veil over a flat face and a bridegroom with a "mop" of yellow hair.

After the reception they went home with the newlyweds, and there they proved invaluable as assistants at cleaning time.

Over the years, they've reappeared at several showers and weddings to which Mrs. Marilyn McDonald, Linda's mother, has been invited, always to return eventually to cleaning chores.

And now they're on the scene again, ready to attend Linda's wedding reception Friday, April 11. She too probably will put them to work after she's Mrs. Daniel Kiwak and busy with homemaking.

BRIDE-TO-BE Linda McDonald and a couple of friends who will attend her wedding reception. (Staff photo by Mitchell Booth)

THIS BRIDAL PAIR are made of wet mop, broom, dust mop and dust pan, and they've become Mrs. McDonald's own special shower gift.

"The first time I made them I was short of money for a shower gift and decided to try something different," she said. For her sister's wedding, she fashioned the bride from a wet mop and broom, putting a tiara and veil atop the mop and encasing the broom straws in ruffled crepe paper and ribbon.

The bridegroom, already provided with dry mop hair, needed only a black crepe paper tuxedo and boutonnaire.

THE ORIGINAL GIFT made quite a hit, so Mrs. McDonald has done a repeat performance at a couple of other weddings.

"People really seem to like them," she said. "I make them as shower gifts, and they keep turning up at the wedding receptions."

Each bride, as she is ready to put her friends to work, returns the veil and tiara to Mrs. McDonald so she can use them again. With this recycling of shower gifts, Mrs. McDonald has only to add the cost of a couple rolls of crepe paper to the cost of the mops, broom and dust pan to have a popular gift.

"And I've learned to put them together pretty fast," she said.

Linda, who was a flower girl for the wedding the mop people first attended, had seen them come as gifts to several other showers and insisted that they return for her big occasion.

The mother of the bride was glad to comply.

Be aware of additives, but don't be uptight

(Second of a three-part series)

By MARGARET MILLER

"I'm not uptight about additives," says Livonia nutritionist Irene Cameron.

"They have helped make it possible for the people of this country to have the best choice of foods ever in history made available.

"And in the Food and Drug Administration we have an agency that can and does keep a very close watch on our food supply. Foods themselves contain chemicals, and everything we eat could be harmful if used in excess.

"The important thing is to understand the use of these supplements and to be aware of how they are present in our diets."

Her view is shared by many top nutritionists, despite the often-publicized objections to certain additives and the recent emphasis on "natural" foods.

Additives are used, they point out, to preserve food, to supplement its nutritional value, to improve its flavor.

At the same time, those active in the nutrition field recognize that the whole matter of food additives is one that causes genuine concern to the homemaker who goes to the supermarket anxious to buy the best nutrition available.

DR. GILBERT LEVEILLE, chairman of the food science and human nutrition department of Michigan State University, put it this way in a recent Detroit visit:

"My concern is the feeling of fear on the part of the consumer about additives. People get misleading information, and they don't know where to turn for the facts."

And Dr. William Darby, president of the Nutrition Foundation of New York, expressed at the same panel discussion the dilemma faced by the entire food industry in this matter.

"Our food supply," he said, "contains a great number of natural chemicals which, in the right amounts, could be considered poisons. But if we tried to avoid such natural toxins, we would impose self-made starvation on ourselves."

TWO EXAMPLES—calcium propionate in bread and nitrates and nitrites in meats—could help show the role of additives in food.

Calcium propionate retards mold in bread. Without it, shelf life of bread products would be so short that the baking industry would not be able to operate profitably and the convenience of buying a loaf of bread would be almost non- existent.

Nitrites and nitrates, according to an FDA bulletin, are natural compounds found in many foods as well as drinking water and human saliva.

They are used, the bulletin adds, in processing of meat and fish products, not only to keep the familiar red color but also to prevent the growth of bacteria that might cause botulism, a form of food poisoning that can be fatal.

"As with most products," the bulletin goes on, "nitrites and nitrates have risks as well as benefits. Under certain conditions, they can form chemicals called nitrosamines, which experiments have shown can cause cancer in animals."

The FDA added that there is no evidence to indicate what effect nitrosamines have in humans, and also said the level of nitrites present in bacon samples is far lower than the level that would have to be present to cause cancer in experimental animals.

BUT THE STUDY indicates the kind of research that is constantly going on in the Food and Drug administration as it serves as food-supply watchdog.

The commission functions under a basic food law passed in 1938 and amended in 1954 to regulate pesticides and in 1958 with regard to additives. Since the latter amendment, the FDA has compiled a GRAS list (of substances, like salt and sugar, that are Generally Regarded As Safe).

This list now contains some 600 items, and testing in the last few years has included such substances as cyclamates in soft drinks (taken off the market for a time but recently found to be not cancer-causing), saccharin (no conclusion yet) and additives suggested as possible contributors to hyperkinesis in children (also no conclusion).

THUS, THE CONSUMER should not worry excessively about food additives, nutritionists believe, but does have responsibilities in considering them when choosing what to put on the family table.

One of these is understanding food terms. Restoration means adding selected nutrients to restore nutrients lost through processing, for instance.

Fund drive for CARIH to begin

A door-to-door collection drive will be launched April 15 by four area chapters of the Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital (CARIH).

Among the leaders of the March for Breath campaign, scheduled to continue through May 15, will be Mrs. Irv Medow of Livonia, president of the Elaine Levin chapter.

Funds raised will go to the National Asthma Center in Denver, where children from all over the country are treated and research on the disease continues.

Mrs. Medow and other members of the CARIH chapters gathered in Southfield recently to plan the fund drive and hear a report from Dr. Dudley Solomon, executive director of the center.

Dr. Soloman, who has a PhD in management and administration, told the local women that 37,242 days of free care; representing an expenditure of about $1 million, have been provided at the center for Michigan children.

The center spends $3.5-million a year, he reported, and said about half of that amount is raised in drives like the March for Breath.

Children at the center, he said, are recommended by physicians and are the ones who "can't be treated at home." They usually remain 12 to 18 months, he added, so medical personnel there can "see them through all seasons."

The hospital director also reported on a recent breakthrough in research on asthma, the evidence that Gamma Five, a fifth antibody, is produced in greater quantity by asthmatics than by those who do not have the disease.

Contributions for the center may be mailed to CARIH, P.O. Box 8990, Oak Park, 48237.

NOW invites Selma Goode

Selma Goode of Westside Mothers a welfare rights organization, will speak at a meeting of the National Organization for Women Tuesday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m. in Newman House, 17300 Haggerty, Livonia, just south of Schoolcraft College.

Westside Mothers is dedicated to informing about their rights people who are on welfare, who are collecting unemployment compensation or who are on other kinds of public assistance.

Women alone to be discussed

Peggy Price, of Schoolcraft College Community Services, will speak on women living alone Friday, April 11 at 1 p.m. in the Westland Parks and Recreation offices, 32715 Dorsey.

Called "And the Beat Goes On," the talk will deal with single or widowed older women living by themselves. Both men and women are invited.

For further information contact Beatrice Scalice in the Department of Parks and Recreation.

Additives

and fortification is adding selected nutrients not normally present. Enrichment is adding nutrients to a food so as to make it conform to a special standard.

Several others are suggested by a home management educator, Margaret Nelson of the University of Wisconsin, writing in the MSU cooperative extension publication, Nutrition Viewpoint.

"Make a nutritious diet your goal, and don't be led astray by a fear of additives," Ms. Nelson recommends.

In this regard, she mentioned specifically being wary of fad diets, "organically grown" foods, which, she said, are not different in food value, and health foods, which may be more expensive and "probably no more nutritious than food available at any supermarket."

Ms. Nelson also suggested plenty of variety to the diet, because "it's more interesting, and you'll be less likely to consume an excessive amount of any one foodstuff or additive."

"READ THE LABELS," she continued. "They help you choose foods with nutritional additives.

"Select whole grain cereal products or choose enriched bread, rolls, cereals flour and pastas. Buy iodized salt, choose milk fortified with vitamin D, and avoid extreme consumption of highly- fortified foods, because too much of some vitamins may be harmful."

And finally, she recommended keeping informed and up-to-date, nutritionally speaking.

"Encourage public officials to maintain strong monitoring and testing programs for additives, and support legislation which strengthens such programs and provides adequate appropriations," she wrote. "Seek out dependable sources of information and aids to guide your choice and use of food.

"Then continue to enjoy eating."

Now working people can enjoy some of the advantages that companies do.
Announcing the I.R.A. – Individual Retirement Account. Authorized by the U.S. Government.
At age 65, you and your wife can count on Social Security payments up to $399 a month to live on. That's precious little now. And who knows how high the cost of living will be when you retire.
We have a plan that can help you three ways. It's called I.R.A.—the Individual Retirement Account.
1. It can provide you with a personal retirement fund to augment Social Security payments. New Federal regulations permit certain working and self-employed persons to set aside as much as 15% of their annual earned income (up to a maximum of $1500 a year) in an I.R.A. This can be placed in your account in a lump sum or small regular selected payments.
2. These I.R.A. deposits actually reduce your taxable income while you are working. For instance, if you are now earning $15,000 a year, and set aside $1,500 a year in an I.R.A., you would pay income tax on only $13,500.
3. More tax-free dollars! You pay no income tax on the interest your I.R.A. earns until you make withdrawals. And then, you're taxable only on the amount withdrawn each year after retirement. Federal regulations state that withdrawals prior to retirement are subject to penalty. While withdrawals must begin before you reach 70½ years of age, by that time your income should be lower, and consequently your income tax should be considerably lower.
Who's eligible for an I.R.A.? Anyone who isn't participating in a pension or profit-sharing plan where they're employed. That includes working spouses and self-employed people who don't have a company plan.
The Individual Retirement Account. It helps bring financial security to your retirement dreams by accumulating tax-free dollars today. For more information on opening your I.R.A., visit any office of Michigan National Bank.

CHECKING A DRAWING of the Cobo Arena stage for the April 13 Lutheran Hour Rally are (from left) Tommy Thompson of St. Louis, director of communications for the Lutheran Hour program; Otto Rosenbusch of Bloomfield Hills, decorations chairman; Marvin O. Moser of Livonia, general chairman for the rally, and Harry J. Will of Livonia, program chairman.

2 local churchmen help plan Lutheran Hour rally

Two Livonia businessmen are playing a major role in arrangements for the Lutheran Hour Rally, scheduled Sunday, April 13 at 3:30 p.m. in Cobo Arena, Detroit.

Marvin O. Moser, president of Mayfair Realty, is general chairman for the rally expected to bring some 15,000 persons to the downtown arena, and Harry J. Will, chairman of the board of the Harry J. Will Funeral Home, Inc., is program chairman.

Dr. Oswald Hoffman, regular speaker for the Lutheran Hour radio program, will address the gathering to be sponsored by the Michigan Southeast District of the International Lutheran Layman's League.

Liturgists will be Dr. Richard L. Schecht, president of the Michigan District of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church, and the Rev. Herold L. Hecht, president of the English District of the Missouri Synod.

Some 3,300 choir members from 100 congregations in southeastern Michigan will join in music for the event. Among them will be choirs from Concordia Seminary in Ann Arbor, choirs from three Lutheran high schools in the metropolitan area, a group from Ontario and a 14-member brass choir.

In addition, there will be a Parade of Nations, with 75 young people wearing apparel of nations around the world.

Plans are being made to video-tape the entire rally for broadcast over station WMUZ-FM on Monday, April 14.

The rally, Will said, is to promote the Lutheran Hour program, which has been broadcast weekly for more than 40 years.

Since its inception, it has grown from 32 stations in North America to more than 1,100 stations throughout the United States and Canada.

The program also is produced in 20 overseas offices in 45 languages and is broadcast from 600 stations in 135 countries.

The Lutheran Layman's League is a lay organization that sponsors a broadcast of the program to an estimated 40-million listeners every week.

The organization depends on public donations to continue its work.

A free-will offering will be taken at both showings of the film.

INTRODUCING The BMW 530 i...
"the Ultimate Driving Machine"

OUR STATUS SYMBOL IS UNDER THE HOOD NOT ON IT.

In an age of mass produced status symbols, marketing geniuses and styling breakthroughs, the engineers of the Bavarian Motor Works concentrate on building the best driving machines it is physically and technically possible to build. Irrespective of passing fashion or price. And as a feat of pure engineering intelligence—as a luxury automobile perfect for its time—the new BMW 530 i may well be unequalled in all the world. The perfect replacement for the overstuffed, overpowered, oversized luxury sedan.
